Senate Nixes Bids To Cut Space Funding

WASHINGTON (AP) — After sharp debate on how best to spend the nation's money, the Senate has resisted attempts to ground part of the space program while voting an extra $700 million for sewers, urban renewal and pure water.

The two-day debate on national priorities and fiscal responsibility ended Tuesday when an $18.6 billion catch-all money bill, $1.2 billion heavier than requested by President Nixon, was sent to conference with the House.

In close votes, the Senate refused to trim any funds from the budget for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, a reluctance which Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., said resulted in a "public works extravaganza," and "an out and out boondoggle for the aerospace industry."

"Calls for fiscal responsibility are regularly heard in the Senate," Proxmire said Tuesday after the 38-35 vote defeating his move to cut $122 million from the NASA budget and reduce it to the $3.197 billion spending level set earlier by the House. The final Senate figure for NASA was $3.319 billion.

"If we are going to make a start toward controlling these unneeded expenditures," he said, "this is the place to do it."

The Senate followed its rejection of the Proxmire vote by adding $400 million to funds for urban renewal grants and $300 million for sewerage and water treatment facilities.

The latter proposal, opposed by many of the senators who fought to maintain space spending levels, was followed by a surprise space cut proposal by Sen. William Fulbright who was stopped from a bid to strip $300 million from the space program only by last-minute vote switches.

"We have spent billions of dollars to bring back moon rocks to put on display in the Smithsonian Institution," the Arkansas Democrat said.

It is a thrill to see them, he said, in a sarcastic tone that brought laughs from the gallery. "But not nearly the thrill of smelling the Potomac River on a hot night."

Sen. Gordon Allott, R-Colo., and other senators opposed to increased spending for other items in the omnibus independent agencies appropriations bill insisted fiscal responsibility demanded restraint.

GOP Calls Demo Talk 'Con Job'

WASHINGTON (AP) — It was the premiere of the Lawrence P. O'Brien show, the latest episode in a burgeoning movement to make more use of television as the playing field of political football.

And, in prime time, the Democratic National Chairman looked the camera straight in its red eye Tuesday night and accused President Nixon of broken promises, of "ringing calls for action, but few results."

"Con job," responded Republicans, suggesting they would need their own show to rebut.

Not that the growing tendency among political circles to speak softly and carry a big makeup kit is limited to party warfare.

Vietnam doves are filing a complaint against the networks in hopes of gaining more air time to lobby for an antiwar measure. War supporters are demanding time to answer the doves.

Fact is, television is finding itself as much a government battleground as the halls of Congress and the hometown rally.

President Orders Trainmen To Work For Next 60 Days

House Eyes Cooper-Church Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The initial House test of the Senate-passed Cooper-Church amendment to curb future U.S. operations in Cambodia may come Thursday, but even its supporters expect to lose.

The main hope of the proposal's backers, evidently is to run up a big, even if losing, vote for the plan passed two weeks ago by the Senate after nearly two months of debate.

No concrete plan for action has been set, but indications are that Rep. Thomas E. Morgan, D-Pa., chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, may try Thursday to send the foreign military sales bill—which includes the Cooper-Church amendment—to conference with the Senate.

If he does, House backers of the amendment say they plan to try and bind the House conferees in advance to the Cooper-Church language, which cuts off U.S. spending for Cambodia.

At that point a motion to table and thus kill the instructions could be expected. The test vote would follow.

Morgan, who has made clear his opposition to Cooper-Church in its present form, said he wants to go to conference with the Senate without any instructions.

President Nixon, in a radio-television interview last week, indicated he hopes a modified version of the amendment would come out of the House-Senate conference.

The President emphasized two points: recognition of what he says is his constitutional power to protect U.S. troops; and authority to pay the bill for Asian nations sending troops and advisers to Cambodia.

Senate sources earlier said they felt the key fight in the conference will be over the latter point. Opponents claim it would lead to U.S. employment of Asian mercenaries to carry on the fight in Cambodia on behalf of this country.

The Cooper-Church amendment, with an effective date of July 1, would bar funds for "entering into or carrying on any contract or agreement to provide military instruction in Cambodia, or to provide persons to engage in any combat activity in support of Cambodian forces."

It also would prohibit the president from spending any funds without congressional consent for retaining U.S. forces in Cambodia, sending military advisers to instruct Cambodian forces and providing air combat to Cambodian forces.

The last U.S. troops came out of Cambodia at the end of June. All but one of the Senate conferees strongly back the Cooper-Church restrictions, named for Sens. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., and Frank Church, I-Idaho. The House conferees, when they are named, are expected to be opposed to them.

Staff Aide Blasts House 'Coverup' On Viet Prisons

WASHINGTON (AP) — A staff aide charges the select House investigating committee sent to Vietnam was "led around by the nose" and suppressed its discovery of political prisoners crammed into tiny "tiger cages."

Thomas R. Harkin said Tuesday disclosure of several hundred prisoners in the cramped lime-sprinkled pits—many unable to stand and some showing signs of beatings—was striking from the committee's report because some members feared it would be "highly embarrassing" and would overshadow other findings.

Chairman G. V. "Sonny" Montgomery, D-Miss., responded, calling Harkin a disgruntled staff member. He said the tiger cage conditions were left out of the report for fear of repercussions on American prisoners of war in Hanoi.

Harkin said he was resigning because the investigation described by Montgomery as a "no briefings trip" was "comprised mainly of military briefings or State Department arranged and approved meetings."

He said a U.S. Information Agency employee assigned to the committee as a press aide worked with the State Department to arrange nearly all trips and interviews.

"I call this whole thing a whitewash of a snow job," Harkin said.

Montgomery said that charge was "ridiculous and irresponsible." The committee, he went on, picked its own investigation spots, in many cases giving less than 30 minutes notice before arriving.

Harkin said more than 200 men, crammed three to five in 86 5-by-8-foot tiger pits in one building, were unable to stand because they had been there so long. He said nearly 200 women were kept in tiger cages in another building. Each cage had a wood bucket for a toilet.

Harkin's description was generally backed by the two congressmen who visited the prison, Reps. William R. Anderson, D-Tenn., and Augustus F. Hawkins, D-Calif.

A spokesman at the U.S. Embassy in Saigon said American authorities have known about the prison conditions but added:

"Of course the control of this system rests with the ministry of interior of the Vietnamese government."

The spokesman said Vietnamese authorities "say they do not have any choice but to have people in that place."

In Saigon, informed sources said the South Vietnamese, in reaction to the criticism, has sent an investigative team to the prison site.

98 Viet Reds Said Slain In Clash Near Khe Sanh

SAIGON (AP) — American helicopters and ground forces were reported to have killed at least 98 North Vietnamese in a day-long battle today a mile west of the abandoned U.S. Marine combat base at Khe Sanh.

Initial reports said the enemy death toll was expected to rise beyond 100. It was not certain whether the fighting had broken off at nightfall.

U.S. officials said at least two Americans were killed and six wounded in the fight in the northwest corner of the country. Khe Sanh was the scene of a 77-day enemy siege in early 1968 and was abandoned in June of that year.

The battle began when crewmen of cruising 101st Airborne Division helicopter spotted 150-250 North Vietnamese troops in an open field and called in rocket-firing helicopter gunships.

A reaction force of paratroopers also was air lifted into the area by helicopter and clashed with the enemy.

It was the second major battle in northernmost 1st Corps within the past week. The other was a two-day fight between South Vietnam's 1st Division and North Vietnamese troops on sand flats southeast of Quang Tri, some 40 miles to the east of Khe Sanh. In that battle, the government troops claimed 146 of the enemy killed.

Word of the new fighting came as government spokesmen in Saigon disclosed that three battalions of civilian irregulars had been withdrawn from Cambodia, and the rest of South Vietnam's Mekong Delta-based task force embarked on a new operation in Cambodia.

Noted Actress Marjorie Rambeau Dies

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Character actress Marjorie Rambeau, whose lustrous, grande dame roles won her two Oscar nominations, died Tuesday after a long illness. She was 80.

A veteran of more than 60 years on stage and screen, she was featured in movies and television even after a car accident left her crippled 25 years ago.

Miss Rambeau became the youngest leading lady in the history of the American professional theatre in 1902 when she played the title role in "Camille" in Portland, Ore., at the age of 13.

After success on Broadway, Miss Rambeau was one of the first stage actresses brought to Hollywood to star in early talkie films. Her first movie was "Her Man" in 1930.

She drew Oscar nominations for best supporting actress in 1940 for "Primrose Path" and in 1953 for "Torch Song."

Kidney Transplant Recipient Dies

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — James A. Frazier, 24-year-old kidney transplant patient from Canton, died Tuesday in Akron City Hospital.

The hospital said the kidney was functioning properly at the time of death and planned an autopsy. Frazier received the kidney at the hospital March 27.

Frazier was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alto Frazier of Canton. His mother is minister at the Bethel Second A.M.E. Church in Canton.

Council Opposes Water District's Area Soliciting

Opposition to soliciting customers for the Earnhart Water District was expressed via legislation during Tuesday evening's semi-monthly City Council meeting.

A resolution was passed on a five-to-one vote to show disapproval of the new Earnhart Water District soliciting consumers from areas bounding the city's corporation limits. Agreeing that there is a need for a water district to serve the areas under consideration, they recommended that the immediate portions of Circleville's growth, Pete Cook cast the only dissenting vote.

Solons passed legislation to allow the Norfolk and Western Railroad and Pickaway Grain to extend and relocate the grain company's railroad siding.

Representatives of the companies, Richard Bower and George Young, presented their proposal to the city fathers to increase the present four car siding to accommodate seven railroad cars at once and end the congestion and delays at harvest time. Their plans call for an extension south to Mound Street. The new siding would eliminate blocking of traffic on the busy Main Street crossing.

MONEY matters, including the passage of the 1971 annual budget, were topics of discussion at the meeting. Six amendments were made to the

Bomb Damages Haitian Building In New York

NEW YORK (AP) — A pipe bomb exploded Tuesday at the Haitian Consulate, slightly injuring three persons.

Shortly afterwards, explosive devices were found intact at the South African Consulate and the Portuguese tourist agency. Police dismantled them.

Earlier in the day, a three-foot hole was blasted in a replica of a rocket at the Hall of Science in Flushing Meadow Park. Authorities found a Viet Cong flag flying nearby.

The explosion at the Haitian Consulate was confined to the waiting room and corridor of the office.

It came five days after four embassies in Washington, including that of Haiti, were fire-bombed.

Leaders In 2 Vietnams See Future Victory

By DANIEL De LUCE
Associated Press Writer

In Hanoi as well as in Saigon, a visiting American can find "proof" of almost anything he wants to believe about the war. With comparable fervor of emotion and the same assurance that time is on the speaker's side, warring leaders in North and South Vietnam have told me alike that they see signs in 1970 of ultimate victory despite the war's painful course.

In this little cockpit of Asia, after a generation of struggle and five years of major American participation in combat, contradictions still thicken the fog of war.

Last February in Hanoi, North Vietnam's Foreign Minister, Nguyen Duy Trinh, gave me the Communists' interpretation of current events:

The South Vietnamese masses want independence above all else—a country from which all foreign military forces have retreated—and they will continue their patriotic self-sacrifice until this is achieved.

Because the United States is arming a huge Vietnamese army under a small clique of generals in Saigon, the war will be protracted. But in the end, national liberation forces will prevail, a few generals may flee to their secret fortresses in Switzerland, and South Vietnam will arise an independent, neutral state living in peace.

That is Hanoi's version. For the Saigon government's view, Lt. Gen. Hoang Xuan Lam is an able spokesman, dispensing with any interpreter and speaking directly in English.

General Lam commands I Corps Tactical Zone, two infantry divisions, and five provincial governments. His forces near the 17th Parallel are South Vietnam's shield against "northern invaders."

He is five years younger than President Nguyen Van Thieu, his comrade in arms, and reached the rank of lieutenant general about five years later than Thieu. He was born within 20 miles of the Ben Hai River, the present dividing line between North and South Vietnam. He has many medals for valor.

"Why do our people continue to fight? Because they can't stand to live under Communist rule," said Lam.

"We know that if we like to be free, we must fight."

"I have 150,000 troops and thousands of territorial platoons, the Popular Forces, which are scattered through I Corps."

"Not one of my platoons has gone to the hills. Not one has deserted."

"The Communists say they will continue to fight 10 more

Marijuana Raid Just Too Late

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Sheriff Harry P. Clay led newsmen and raiders Tuesday to an area his men had staked out for three weeks in an effort to capture growers of marijuana.

No arrests were made but 82 healthy marijuana plants were found—and the sheriff estimated they had been watered within 20 minutes of the arrival of the raiders.

Nixon Wants New Deal For Indians

WASHINGTON (AP) — Exploring the plight of the American Indian, President Nixon told Congress today it is time "for a new era in which the Indian future is determined by Indian acts and Indian decisions."

In a special message, Nixon said he was proposing legislation that would empower Indian tribes or tribal groups to take over control and operation of federally financed programs for their benefit—programs now operated by government employees.

He also proposed that "every Indian community wishing to do so should be able to control its own Indian schools" by setting up school boards like those in other communities.

The chief executive called for increases in federal funds for a number of Indian aid programs and asked Congress to set up a new position of assistant secretary of the interior for Indian and territorial affairs.

Acting on one question of long standing dispute, Nixon gave a firm endorsement to legislation that would restore 48,000 acres of land near Blue Lake, N.M., to the Taos Pueblo Indians. He conferred with members of the tribal council of this group shortly before sending his message to Capitol Hill.

Declaring that the federal government took the land away from the Indians without compensation in 1906, Nixon said the 48,000 acres should be returned for traditional religious and tribal purposes with a proviso that "except for such uses the lands would remain forever wild."

STRS Audit Reports No Big Errors

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Oversight in some bookkeeping of the State Teachers Retirement System (STRS) relating to uncollected dividends on investments was disclosed today by the state auditor's office.

There were no findings made in the auditor's investigation but it pointed to some overpayments and erroneous crediting. Guardians of the $1.6 billion STRS investing program apparently did not detect a $111,974 overcharge by a mortgage company which was settled for $48,520, the auditors said.

It explained that the $53,453 in unclaimed balance will not be pursued since the attorney general, on two occasions, has indicated little chance of collecting the claim.

The report said that while the STRS received the yield for which it contracted in mortgage purchases, a continuing master contract drafted a decade ago provided that STRS would benefit from any increase in market yield with the Hartzler Mortgage Co. of Columbus, one of several firms providing services for the STRS.

The stipulation was overlooked by Hartzler and STRS for several years until an internal audit by the retirement system uncovered the situation for the period Aug. 1 1966 to May 1 1969,

Taft Plans Bill To Free Cash For Mortgages

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Robert Taft Jr. today introduced a bill aimed at making more mortgage money available to potential homeowners to help meet the housing needs of the 70s.

The bill would amend tax laws to exempt from gross income the first $500 of interest received from savings deposits in lending institutions.

Taft told the House that savings and loan institutions provide about 45 per cent of all home loan money in the U.S. Taft said his bill would provide the incentive to millions of Americans to invest their funds in these institutions.

House Eyes Cooper-Church Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The initial House test of the Senate-passed Cooper-Church amendment to curb future U.S. operations in Cambodia may come Thursday, but even its supporters expect to lose.

The main hope of the proposal's backers evidently is to run up a big, even if losing, vote for the plan passed two weeks ago by the Senate after nearly two months of debate.

No concrete plan for action has been set, but indications are that Rep. Thomas E. Morgan, D-Pa., chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, may try Thursday to send the foreign military sales bill—which includes the Cooper-

Church amendment—to conference with the Senate.

If he does, House backers of the amendment say they plan to try and bind the House conferees in advance to the Cooper-Church language, which cuts off U.S. spending for Cambodia.

At that point a motion to table and thus kill the instructions could be expected. The test vote would follow.

Morgan, who has made clear his opposition to Cooper-Church in its present form, said he wants to go to conference with the Senate without any instructions.

President Nixon, in a radio-television interview last week, indicated he hopes a modified version of the amendment would come out of the House-Senate conference.

The President emphasized two points: recognition of what he says is his constitutional power to protect U.S. troops; and authority to pay the bill for Asian nations sending troops and advisers to Cambodia.

Senate sources earlier said they felt the key fight in the conference will be over the latter point. Opponents claim it would lead to U.S. employment of Asian mercenaries to carry on the fight in Cambodia on behalf of this country.

The Cooper-Church amendment, with an effective date of July 1, would bar funds for "entering into or carrying on any contract or agreement to provide military instruction in Cambodia, or to provide persons to engage in any combat activity in support of Cambodian forces."

It also would prohibit the president from spending any funds without congressional consent for retaining U.S. forces in Cambodia, sending military advisers to instruct Cambodian forces and providing air combat to Cambodian forces.

The last U.S. troops came out of Cambodia at the end of June. All but one of the Senate conferees strongly back the Cooper-Church restrictions, named for Sens. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., and Frank Church, I-Idaho. The House conferees, when they are named, are expected to be opposed to them.

More Soviet Access Sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Ambassador to Moscow Jacob Beam plans to see Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko soon in an American effort to boost the use of high-level talks with the Russians on important issues.

Beam returned to the Soviet capital from Washington about a fortnight ago after consultations with senior U.S. officials, including President Nixon.

Gromyko has agreed to meet with Beam late this week, informants said. He has seen Beam only infrequently since the American's assignment to Moscow early in the Nixon administration.

At present Anatoly F. Dobrynin, the veteran Soviet ambassador to Washington, has frequent access to Secretary of State William P. Rogers and other high U.S. officials. He has spent many hours with Assistant Secretary Joseph J. Sisco on the Middle East issue.

The Soviet ambassador is rated high here as an able professional diplomat. But, as with other Moscow envoys, he appears to be kept under close rein by the Kremlin—and thus functions more as a communications relay man than as a discussor of issues.

If Beam can establish more frequent contact with Gromyko, the reasoning here goes, the results could be well worth while because the foreign minister can speak more freely than underlings and carries more weight in Soviet decision-making.

Move Averts Full National Rail Shutdown

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, acting after the industry threatened to stop the nation's trains if a union kept striking three key lines, has ordered railroad workers back to their jobs for 60 days while an emergency board seeks to settle a long-running dispute.

Just after the President moved to avert a national rail crisis Tuesday night by resorting to his final remedy under the Railway Labor Act, the Labor Department reported it was told the thousands of striking United Transportation Union members would go to work again as soon as possible.

The department said the National Railway Labor Conference, the industry group representing more than 125 railroads, rescinded its consideration of a lockout of employees and threat to shut down the system.

The UTU called the strike suddenly Tuesday after charging the lines with refusing to bargain in good faith over the use of firemen on diesel engines.

Spot checks early today of areas served by the Baltimore & Ohio, Louisville & Nashville and Southern Pacific railroads showed most pickets down within hours of Nixon's order.

Nixon's decision came on the recommendation of the National Mediation Board and Secretary of Labor James W. Hodgson after a day in which passenger and freight trains were stopped or slowed in at least 16 states.

The chief executive called for increases in federal funds for a number of Indian aid programs and asked Congress to set up a new position of assistant secretary of the interior for Indian and territorial affairs.

Acting on one question of long standing dispute, Nixon gave a firm endorsement to legislation that would restore 48,000 acres of land near Blue Lake, N.M., to the Taos-Pueblo Indians. He conferred with members of the tribal council of this group shortly before sending his message to Capitol Hill.

Declaring that the federal government took the land away from the Indians without compensation in 1906, Nixon said the 48,000 acres should be returned for traditional religious and tribal purposes with a proviso that "except for such uses the lands would remain forever wild."

Marijuana Raid Just Too Late

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Sheriff Harry P. Clay led newsmen and raiders Tuesday to an area his men had staked out for three weeks in an effort to capture growers of marijuana.

No arrests were made but 82 healthy marijuana plants were found—and the sheriff estimated they had been watered within 20 minutes of the arrival of the raiders.

Council Opposes Water District's Area Soliciting

Opposition to soliciting customers for the Earnhart Water District was expressed via legislation during Tuesday evening's semi-monthly City Council meeting.

A resolution was passed on a five-to-one vote to show disapproval of the new Earnhart Water District soliciting consumers from areas bounding the city's corporation limits. Agreeing that there is a need for a water district to serve the areas under consideration, they recommended that the immediate portions of Circleville Twp. surrounding the city should be served by the municipal water system. Councilmen consider extension by the Earnhart District could cripple the expansion of Circleville's growth, Pete Cook said the only dissenting vote.

Solons passed legislation to allow the Norfolk and Western Railroad and Pickaway Grain to extend and relocate the grain company's railroad siding.

Representatives of the companies, Richard Bower and George Young, presented their proposal to the city fathers to increase the present four car siding to accommodate seven railroad cars at once and end the congestion and delays at harvest time. Their plans call for an extension south to Mound Street. The new siding would eliminate blocking of traffic on the busy Main Street crossing.

MONEY matters, including the passage of the 1971 annual budget, were topics of discussion at the meeting. Six amendments were made to the

Bomb Damages Haitian Building In New York

NEW YORK (AP) — A pipe bomb exploded Tuesday at the Haitian Consulate, slightly injuring three persons.

Shortly afterwards, explosive devices were found intact at the South African Consulate and the Portuguese tourist agency. Police dismantled them.

Earlier in the day, a three-foot hole was blasted in a replica of a rocket at the Hall of Science in Flushing Meadow Park. Authorities found a Viet Cong flag flying nearby.

The explosion at the Haitian Consulate was confined to the waiting room and corridor of the office.

It came five days after four embassies in Washington, including that of Haiti, were fire-bombed.

Thai Government Reports Leader Of Reds Nabbed

BANGKOK (AP) — The Thai government announced today the capture of the highest ranking Thai Communist and said this had broken the back of the clandestine Communist movement of Thailand.

The announcement came only hours after the government announced a full-scale military alert in Bangkok, and was probably partly the reason for the alert.

Thailand's top policeman, Gen. Prasert Ruchirawong, told newsmen the man, believed to be the most senior member of the Central Committee of the Thai Communist party, was captured in Bangkok on July 3.

He was identified as Prasert Iawchai, 50, a Thai national.

Prasert described him as the chief organizer and treasurer of the movement in Thailand which has guerrilla units in about 20 Thai provinces.

Prasert said Communist propaganda books, leaflets, instruction manuals, $2,500 in cash and gold bars worth about $10,000 were seized.

The general said the captured man master minded the financing, supply and planning of the Communist movement in Thailand which has about 5,000 full-time guerrillas and a possible 25,000 supporters, mainly in the impoverished regions of the country.

"The capture of this man destroyed the heart of the Communist party," Prasert said.

The arrest was given as the reason for the military alert imposed on the capital, but there were indications that a political crisis resulting from harsh new taxes was brewing.

The prime minister, Field Marshal Thanom Kittikachorn, told newsmen he had ordered the garrisons of the 1st Army, known as the "coup army" because of its leading role in past coups d'etat, to stand by for trouble.

Air Chief Marshal Dawee Chilasapaya, chief of staff of the Supreme Command, told newsmen the alert was a precaution against Communist infiltration into the capital which the police department had detected.

It appeared, however, that the predominantly military government was showing its muscle to scare off hostile public reaction to recent sharp increases in import duties and sales taxes which have forced up the prices of almost all commodities.

Some of the import taxes were increased as much as 100 per cent.

Although aimed directly at the rich, the taxes were passed on almost immediately to the poor through increases in the price of rice and other staple foods. Several members of Parliament from the government-backed United Thai Peoples' party have announced they will not support the new tax bill when it is presented in parliament Thursday for approval.

The government party was scheduled to meet later today to whip up support for the new taxes, and Thanom scheduled a nationwide TV-radio broadcast tonight to explain the need for the tax increases.

Political observers felt that if the measure was defeated in parliament, the government would have to resign or abolish parliament. The latter course, a frequent event under past governments was considered most likely. Parliament was revived only 18 months ago after almost 10 years of martial law. The present regime has been in power since the army coup of 1957.

Thanom said 2,000 Cambodians would come to Thailand July 20 to start 16 weeks of military training, and his government would also begin training Thais of Cambodian descent to fight in Cambodia. But he said Thai troops now serving in South Vietnam could not be transferred to Cambodia because they need U.S. support, and the U.S. Senate had voted against this outside Vietnam.

This was referred to the Health Department for investigation. To see if the kennel was in violation of any city code.

2 Universities Deny They Are Dying

NEW YORK (AP) — Spokesmen for Columbia University here and the University of California at Berkeley have disputed the reported conclusion of a report that the two institutions are in danger of dying.

There were reports Tuesday that President Nixon's advisers on campus unrest will tell him that numerous colleges and universities might not even be able to open this fall.

The NBC and ABC television networks said the advisers' report will tell Nixon: "The University of California at Berkeley, as an institution of freedom and learning, is dead . . . Columbia University is faltering badly and may be dead within a few years."

In Berkeley, UC Chancellor Roger W. Heyns said he could not comment on the report, not having seen it, but said it was "absurd" to term the university dead.

Columbia University President Dr. Andrew Cordier was not available for comment but a spokesman for the university said:

"While the pressures facing society in general and universities and colleges in particular are perhaps as great now as at any time in modern history, Columbia fully anticipates meeting the challenges whether it be in 1975, or for that matter, at any time in the future."

Gunfire Ends Asbury Park Race Outbreak

ASBURY PARK, N.J. (AP) — Shotgun pellets wounded 46 persons — four Negroes critically — late Tuesday after State Police turned to gunfire to break up a Negro attack and to enforce a curfew.

Fourteen wounded were hospitalized and hospital authorities listed 92 gunshot wounds treated during three days of racial trouble in this seashore resort community.

State Police said their detectives were investigating whether trooper shots caused the wounds. State Police said they fired only warning shots.

City officials, meanwhile, scheduled a meeting with Negro leaders to discuss demands for improvements in housing, law enforcement and employment. The city's Negro police chief, Thomas Smith, said if calm prevailed he might recommend withdrawal of some outside police, one of the demands made by Negro leaders Tuesday.

Mayor Joseph Mattiace said: "The beach front, thank goodness, hasn't been affected."

But the boardwalk was empty of its usual throng of summer visitors and Springwood Avenue, main street of the Negro district, was a shambles. There were no big fires Tuesday. Most stores were burned and looted Monday.

Police estimated damage at well over $1 million.

Two other communities also had trouble Tuesday. Red Bank, five miles north, imposed a curfew after some firebombings. Freehold, 13 miles west, had five firebomb blazes.

A membership dues increase for 1971 was authorized during a noon meeting Tuesday of the Circleville Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors.

Unhappy Students Return After Agency Goes Bankrupt

NEW YORK (AP) — The first batch of 3,500 American students has returned from Europe after being temporarily stranded by the financial collapse of the travel agency that arranged their study tours.

"It was bedlam" when the students heard their trips had been cut short, said Debbie Monk, 16, of Newport News, Va. She was among 183 persons emergency airlifted from Switzerland Tuesday to Kennedy Airport.

"Most of the students raised the money for the trip themselves," said Sister Celeste Marie Reichert of St. Edmund's High School, Brooklyn, chaperone to 13 girls from that school.

The cost for the four weeks abroad was $1,200 up.

On Monday, World Academy, Inc., which arranged the trips, filed bankruptcy petitions in Cincinnati's U.S. District Court.

Move Averts

Management spokesmen estimated 18,800 UTU members were idled with another 60,000 workers off the job as a result.

The President designated Fred M. Livingston, a federal mediator who had quit the case in June after several months of talks proved unsuccessful, to head the emergency board looking into the 12-year controversy over the need for firemen on diesel engines. The union maintains at least three men are needed in each locomotive for safety reasons. The railroads dispute this.

Moments before Nixon's action was announced, Federal Judge Barrington Parker granted the railroads' request for a temporary restraining order to stop the strike until action could be taken on the carriers' bid for a preliminary injunction.

Parker set a Thursday hearing on the injunction move. After the President's step, attorneys for both sides said the hearing remained scheduled although a railroad lawyer added he would expect it to be a moot point.

Nixon now has no additional legal authority under the Railway Labor Act to avert a strike. If one is called after the cooling-off period, he would have to ask Congress to step in.

Under the presidential order the emergency board gets 30 days to look into the dispute. There then can be no work stoppage for 30 days after the board reports to the President.

The nationwide shutdown was threatened by the industry if what the carriers called a whip-saw strike against a selected few lines was not ended.

Involved in this issue is the legality of strikes against individual railroads that are part of a multiple negotiating unit.

Stock Prices Go Higher

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices were moderately higher early this afternoon in quiet trading.

At noon the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 4.65 at 674.01.

Analysts attributed the upturn to short covering in some glamour issues and to President Nixon's action to avert a nationwide rail shutdown.

The relatively light volume indicated that the market was not being swept ahead in any great wave of buying enthusiasm, brokers pointed out.

Rubber issues, electronics, aircrafts, utilities, chemicals, rails, and airlines were generally higher. Oils, motors, steels, and mail order-retail were mixed, while metals were off.

The Associated Press 60-stock average at noon was up 14 to 22.1, with industrials up 13, rail up 0.4, and utilities up 1.7.

Drug Crackdown

The extent of the illegal narcotics trade in this country has been underscored with dramatic impact by the recent raids by federal agents.

The trade's tentacles are such that the government was constrained to probe and plan for six months, then gather together a small army of agents — 350 in all — to strike at 10 cities stretching from San Juan to Los Angeles. Their goal was the wholesale operation, not the local pushers, and their dragnet brought in more than 100 persons and quantities of cocaine and heroin with retail value in the millions.

Operation Eagle points up the importance of coordination in law enforcement in order to get to the source of deadly drugs. The pusher, as much as his arrest is to be desired, is only a minor cog in the operation.

Arresting him does little to cripple the despicable core. If the traffic in narcotics is ever to be hurt seriously, the major supply lines must be hit and only the federal government is equipped to cut them.

The Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — The latest stock market census shows a surprising jump in individual shareowners to 30,085,000 in 1970 from 20.1 million in 1960 and only 6.5 million in 1952. People's capitalism spreads.

One in every six Americans is now a shareholder. They have growing capital resources, and they are investing them.

The picture that could be drawn from the statistics gathered in the census by the New York Stock Exchange is that of a prosperous, middle class America flexing its muscle and reaping the rewards of prosperity.

Never in American history, it would seem, has participation in the economy been greater. But seldom in recent years, judging from the consumer polls, has sentiment been more apprehensive about the immediate economic future.

The development that really brings doubts about the viability of people's capitalism, however, is the relative strength of this growing corps of individual investors compared with the might of institutions.

The census figures indicate that individual investors own

61.1 per cent of all stock in American corporations, or a total of nearly $683 billion, and that "non-individuals" own 34.3 per cent or $365 billion.

The non-individuals include pension funds, broker accounts, banks, insurance companies, foundations, hedge funds and such. And while their dollar holdings may not have risen faster than those of individuals, their market power has.

How? Mainly because of their concentrated wealth and the use they have made of it. Many of them have become traders, and when an institution trades it does so with millions upon millions of dollars.

The little guy—and the census shows he isn't so little these days, having a family income between $12,000 and $15,000 a year—is not a trader. He generally buys for the long term. He is more investor than speculator.

The non-individuals have become his opposite in habits. Some now turn over their portfolios 100 per cent in a year. Some buy and eliminate the same stocks several times in a short period. They have become in-out traders.

"Institutional activity," said President Robert Haack in the Exchange's 1969 annual report, "now accounts for 60 per cent of the value of all public trading on the Exchange."

The power of the individual, it appears, is much less than would appear from a cursory reading of the census. He is growing in numbers, but is he growing in power? Is he a fair match for the pros?

That question is one that will assume growing prominence among the many issues before the exchanges, and is now the subject of a federal study whose findings originally were scheduled for release in September, before a delay was announced.

It is difficult to prove that institutions and their activities have made the entire market hazardous for ordinary investors.

It has been demonstrated, however, that institutions have unloaded large holdings suddenly and almost whimsically and without sufficient concern for the depressions they forced in prices. Small investors sometimes cannot get out of the way in time.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

BEING forty years old, sighs Jim Everhart, means believing it's OK for other women to wear bikinis and minis, but not your wife or daughter . . . finding you need a partial plate and not just three fillings . . . being completely baffled by the "new math"—and the books that explain it . . . having the cute little teenager down the street asking you to a dance—as chaperone! . . . and not knowing a single song in the top forty hits of the week.

Arthur Borden offers this tested recipe for success: "To a cupful of luck, add a pinch of conservatism, a dash of daring and several drops of vision. Then pour in an ounce of belief in one's fellow man, a spoonful of experience, and a generous jigger of good humor. Allow to settle with a sweet, helpful note of understanding, education, and intelligent compromise. Then bestir oneself without straining, add an icing of common sense and honesty—and serve one's God, one's country, and one's family."

In his superb new novel, "The French Lieutenant's Woman," John Fowles observes, "We are just beginning to realize that the desire to hold and the desire to enjoy are mutually destructive. We should say to ourselves, 'I possess this now, therefore I am happy' instead of 'I cannot possess this forever, and therefore I am sad.'"

Speaking Of Your Health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Are tranquilizers dangerous if used over a long period of time? They help me a great deal when I am upset, but I worry because I have been taking them on and off for four years.

Mrs. L.W., Tennessee Dear Mrs. W.: The tranquilizing drugs can really be classed as wonder drugs. Most of these drugs are an outgrowth of a chemical, chlorpromazine, which is derived from a root plant, rauwolfia. Originally this was used to lower blood pressure. Since its discovery, however, it has been modified and changed in many ways. When taken to control anxiety, nervousness and irritability, tranquilizers accomplish their purpose well.

Unfortunately, these drugs have been taken to excess by many who falsely believe that tranquilizers can solve all their physical and emotional problems. This is a real danger. In your case, the fact that long period of time under the direction of a director reduces this danger. A small amount over such a long time does not indicate dependence, addiction or abuse. The fact that you have not had any side effects during these years means that you are not allergic or sensitive and can probably continue to take the drug as prescribed by your doctor.

Tranquilizers, of course, can reduce reflexes and therefore should be used only sparingly while driving an automobile or using power tools. Combinations of any drugs should be used very carefully because their combined effects may be unpredictable. It is for this reason that alcohol, "pep" pills and tranquilizers used without moderation and in conjunction with each other can be dangerous and even fatal. For safety take drugs only as prescribed and for the time specified.

What is the cause and meaning of milk leg? This happened to me after I gave birth to my second child. Dear Mrs. M.: I don't know the origin of the term milk leg and how it came to be used to describe a swelling of the foot, ankle or leg. Occasionally after surgery or the delivery of a child the deep veins of the leg may become inflamed. This is known as phlebitis. The inner lining of the veins may become irritated and form a clot that interferes with the free flow of blood. When this happens, marked swelling of the leg may occur. Recovery time depends on the size of the affected veins. The condition is usually controlled with rest, medication and supporting hose.

Besides arteries and veins another system, known as the lymphatics plays a most important role in carrying nourishment in the form of lymph to various parts of the body. Blockage of this lymphatic system can cause the swelling you refer to as milk leg. In recent years patients have been encouraged to get out of bed within 24 to 36 hours after surgery. This stimulates better circulation of the blood and has markedly reduced the number of cases of milk leg and phlebitis in post-operative patients.

Ice and ice water are excellent first aids to reduce the pain of simple household burns.

Can You Fight Inflation?

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

Munich — West Germany, like the U.S., has its industrialists who, in the manner of Henry Ford II, try to roll with the punch when the weather vanes point to the Left. Such a man is Dr. Gerd Tacke, the chief executive of the big Siemens Co., which is the General Electric of West Germany. He was the one industrial titan encountered in several days of interviewing who expressed distaste for efforts to replace Willy Brandt's Social Democratic government before its full parliamentary term expires some three years hence.

An affable, sharp personality who did graduate work at Northwestern University in Chicago, and who is credited with knowing every hotel in Pakistan, Sumatra and other out-of-the-way places which buy Siemens electrical and electronic goods, Dr. Tacke tends to reject all the conventional wisdom of the Right.

You can't fight an inflation, he said, once it is in full swing. The present German inflation, a relatively mild one, started eight months ago and the "sickness" that has resulted "is there." Wages have already gone up. Prices have had to follow. The Bundesbank, the German equivalent of the Federal Reserve, wants to do something about the inflation, but, so Dr. Tacke asks, "is it politically feasible?" Giving his own answer, he says "I don't think it is."

Drastic action would produce a liquidity crisis, which would keep industrialists from building the new plants that are necessary to put more goods on the markets and so "fight the inflation of tomorrow."

Dr. Tacke says the West German unions are strong and the government depends on the unions. You can try to reason with the unions, pointing out that their "catch-up" wage demands will result in an 8 per cent inflation. But "reason," he hastens to add, is not a "modern" commodity. The sensible thing to do is to let the unions enjoy their period of euphoria. After the wage rise has been cancelled by the price rise, they will be ready to reason again.

In any event, West Germany can't cry very much: wages have risen by 7.1 per cent per year for ten years, yet the price level has been more or less stable over the decade.

A relaxed character, Dr. Tacke trusts the German workman to be reliable, reasonable and industrious over a twenty-five-year cycle. He does not worry too much about the behavior of the anarchistic young at the Free University of Berlin. Every nation, he says, "has its driftwood," in Santa Barbara, Calif., as well as in West Berlin. By slip of the tongue, which could have been Freudian, Dr. Tacke included "journalists" among those who tend to shift from job to job. The "driftwood" becomes conspicuous in times of over-employment.

Anyone who wants to work can find a job in West Germany, as is proved by the presence of 1.7 million Turks, Spaniards, Italians, Greeks and other foreigners. And there are those 600,000 unfilled jobs. So the unemployed are, by definition, those who either don't want to work or are unemployable for mental or physical reasons.

Dr. Tacke's philosophy more or less coincides with that of the Social Democratic politicians who reject the effort of their own Minister of Economics, Karl Schiller, to force the Bundesbank restrictive policies on the ruling Social Democratic-Free Democratic coalition. The SDP leaders insist they must have a regard for what they call "social symmetry," meaning that the unions have a right to "catch up" with the employers, who got the breaks when Dr. Ludwig Erhard was the Chancellor. But, to keep wage increases from having a future inflationary effect, the SDP talks about an "accrual of property" policy. The idea would be to let the workers earn something extra on a deferred payment basis. The wage increases would be banked in special savings accounts for six years, with the government subsidizing some of the blocked interest payments. The workers would get their money, plus the interest, after the inflationary dangers had passed. As I seem to remember, John Maynard Keynes, in England, sponsored a similar idea in an article on "How to Pay for the War." Whether it is a good or a bad idea would depend on the state of the economy six years hence, when the "lured savings" (the SDP doesn't like to use the word "forced") would flood the market with the deferred purchasing power.

Broadway Stars

By BOB THOMAS

AP Television-Movie Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Summer visitors to Manhattan will find that visiting the Broadway theater can afford a look at their favorites of the screen.

There's Katharine Hepburn in "Coco", but hurry up, she's being replaced by Danielle Darrieux on Aug. 3; Lauren Bacall in "Applause," and Maureen O'Sullivan in "Charley's Aunt."

Next season will bring more veteran stars from the movies. Danny Kaye has been signed to return to Broadway after a 23-year absence; he'll star in "Two by Two," adapted from Clifford Odet's "The Flowering Peach" with music by Richard Rogers. Another entry is Ruby Keeler, who will return after an even longer absence, appearing in a revival of "No, No, Nanette."

Why do movie personalities return to the stage, especially when they face the danger of capricious critics? The reasons are three-fold:

1. The artistic benefits. "I had almost forgotten the thrill of playing to a real, live audience," said James Stewart upon returning from his New York triumph in "Harvey." "It was tough work, playing eight shows a week, but it was worth it. I felt like a kid again."

Henry Fonda, has made regular practice of returning to the theater to recharge his creative batteries. He returned last season for "Our Town."

2. The money. In some cases, returning to Broadway can mean a financial loss, as when Robert Ryan appeared in repertory with "The Front Page." But for players who turn in big-budget musicals, the returns can be excellent.

Variety reported recently that Danny Kay's percentage of the "Two by Two" gross could bring him $14,000 a week if the musical becomes a hit. He would also profit from part ownership of the production and from the record album sales.

Katharine Hepburn's percentage of "Coco" has brought her a reported $16,000 to $17,000 per week. Lauren Bacall receives nine per cent of "Applause," which has been operating at capacity for $107,000 weekly.

3. Career hypo.

"There's nothing like a Broadway hit to make a career zoom," observes a Hollywood agent. "Look at Angela Lansbury. She could have been stuck playing mother roles for the rest of her career in films. But she went to Broadway for 'Mame' and became the toast of the town. Now she's starring for Disney and has her choice of parts."

30 YEARS AGO

The largest shipment of cattle ever made by the Pickaway County Livestock Assn. was sent to Swift and Company in New York. The 204 whiteface hereofers filled 12 railroad cars.

Ashville's season pea pack closed July 1 after an almost continuous day and night run since June 13. Among those employed were George Duvall, Ida Plummer and Lilly Seymour who were part of the operation at the beginning of the plant in 1900.

William Thornton, James Shea, Roy Norris Jr., and Ted Moon traveled to Indianapolis, Ind., where they were enrolled in the Citizen's Military Training Camp for the next month.

Fourth of July celebrations in Circleville were strictly informal. Theatres featured continuous shows, flags were displayed everywhere, government and industrial activities were suspended. Candidates for office in the county and district were finding an available crowd at Ashville's festivities.

County schools published their annual calendar for 1940-41. Students began schooling Sept. 3 and ended May 20.

Harland J. Ballard, a 27-year-old Columbus man, was shot by Ashville Marshal Robert Warden and Deputy Cecil Scott, following an argument with his wife at the Fourth of July celebration at the dance.

Viola May Alkire, daughter of Mrs. Fairy Alkire, Circleville, left for New York to continue her career by training as a professional dancer. Miss Alkire has earned a reputation in Central Ohio as a dancer since her early youth in Columbus productions as well as local affairs.

Last evidence of the Washington Bakery, which stood on West Main St., was destroyed when the oven, installed over 50 years before, was torn down. The oven, an old fashioned inside type, originally burned wood and coke, but later was adapted to gas. Nearly 15,000 bricks were used in the construction of the ten foot by twelve foot structure.

The Ashville Mop Factory was incorporated under a board of Mrs. Blown Johnson, Harry Rhoades, Dr. R. S. Hosler, Howell Evans, and J. E. Courtwright, manager. The shop was begun by Henry Culp, who made mops in a small shop bordering the alley and directly east of the village council house 50 years earlier.

Kiwanis Club's summer health camp for underprivileged boys of the community was located along the Darby Creek on Wayne Hoover's property. Thirty boys took part in the eight day program of recreation and wholesome food.

Drug Crackdown

The extent of the illegal narcotics trade in this country has been underscored with dramatic impact by the recent raids by federal agents.

The trade's tentacles are such that the government was constrained to probe and plan for six months, then gather together a small army of agents — 350 in all — to strike at 10 cities stretching from San Juan to Los Angeles. Their goal was the wholesale operation, not the local pushers, and their dragnet brought in more than 100 persons and quantities of cocaine and heroin with retail value in the millions.

Operation Eagle points up the importance of coordination in law enforcement in order to get to the source of deadly drugs. The pusher, as much as his arrest is to be desired, is only a minor cog in the operation.

Arresting him does little to cripple the despicable core. If the traffic in narcotics is ever to be hurt seriously, the major supply lines must be hit and only the federal government is equipped to cut them.

The Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — The latest stock market census shows a surprising jump in individual shareowners to 30,085,000 in 1970 from 20.1 million in 1960 and only 6.5 million in 1952. People's capitalism spreads.

One in every six Americans is now a shareholder. They have growing capital resources, and they are investing them.

The picture that could be drawn from the statistics gathered in the census by the New York Stock Exchange is that of a prosperous, middle class America flexing its muscle and reaping the rewards of prosperity.

Never in American history, it would seem, has participation in the economy been greater. But seldom in recent years, judging from the consumer polls, has sentiment been more apprehensive about the immediate economic future.

The doubtment that really brings doubts about the viability of people's capitalism, however, is the relative strength of this growing corps of individual investors compared with the might of institutions.

The census figures indicate that individual investors own

64.1 per cent of all stock in American corporations, or a total of nearly $683 billion, and that "non-individuals" own 34.3 per cent or $365 billion.

The non-individuals include pension funds, broker accounts, banks, insurance companies, foundations, hedge funds and such. And while their dollar holdings may not have risen faster than those of individuals, their market power has.

How? Mainly because of their concentrated wealth and the use they have made of it. Many of them have become traders, and when an institution trades it does so with millions upon millions of dollars.

The little guy—and the census shows he isn't so little these days, having a family income between $12,000 and $15,000 a year—is not a trader. He generally buys for the long term. He is more investor than speculator.

The non-individuals have become his opposite in habits. Some now turn over their portfolios 100 per cent in a year. Some buy and eliminate the same stocks several times in a short period. They have become in-out traders.

"Institutional activity," said President Robert Haack in the Exchange's 1969 annual report, "now accounts for 60 per cent of the value of all public trading on the Exchange."

The power of the individual, it appears, is much less than would appear from a cursory reading of the census. He is growing in numbers, but is he growing in power? Is he a fair match for the pros?

That question is one that will assume growing prominence among the many issues before the exchanges, and is now the subject of a federal study whose findings originally were scheduled for release in September, before a delay was announced.

It is difficult to prove that institutions and their activities have made the entire market hazardous for ordinary investors.

It has been demonstrated, however, that institutions have unloaded large holdings suddenly and almost whimsically and without sufficient concern for the depressions they forced in prices. Small investors sometimes cannot get out of the way in time.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

BEING forty years old, sighs Jim Everhart, means believing it's OK for other women to wear bikinis and minis, but not your wife or daughter . . . finding you need a partial plate and not just three fillings . . .

being completely baffled by the "new math"—and the books that explain it . . . having the cute little teenager down the street asking you to a dance—as chaperon! . . . and not knowing a single song in the top forty hits of the week.

Arthur Borden offers this tested recipe for success: "To a cupful of luck, add a pinch of conservatism, a dash of daring and several drops of vision. Then pour in an ounce of belief in one's fellow man, a spoonful of experience, and a generous jigger of good humor. Allow to settle with a sweet, helpful note of understanding, education, and intelligent compromise. Then bestir oneself without straining, add an icing of common sense and honesty—and serve one's God, one's country, and one's family."

In his superb new novel, "The French Lieutenant's Woman," John Fowles observes, "We are just beginning to realize that the desire to hold and the desire to enjoy are mutually destructive. We should say to ourselves, 'I possess this now, therefore I am happy' instead of 'I cannot possess this forever, and therefore I am sad.'"

Speaking Of Your Health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Are tranquilizers dangerous if used over a long period of time? They help me a great deal when I am upset, but I worry because I have been taking them on and off for four years.

Mrs. L.W., Tennessee Dear Mrs. W.: The tranquilizing drugs can really be classed as wonder drugs. Most of these drugs are an outgrowth of a chemical, chlorpromazine, which is derived from a root plant, rauwolfia. Originally this was used to lower blood pressure. Since its discovery, however, it has been modified and changed in many ways. When taken to control anxiety, nervousness and irritability, tranquilizers accomplish their purpose well. Unfortunately, these drugs have been taken to excess by many who falsely believe that tranquilizers can solve all their physical and emotional problems. This is a real danger.

In your case, the fact that long period of time under the direction of a director reduces this danger. A small amount over such a long time does not indicate dependence, addiction or abuse. The fact that you have not had any side effects during these years means that you are not allergic or sensitive and can probably continue to take the drug as prescribed by your doctor.

Tranquilizers, of course, can reduce reflexes and therefore should be used only sparingly while driving an automobile or using power tools. Combinations of any drugs should be used very carefully because their combined effects may be unpredictable. It is for this reason that alcohol, "pep" pills and tranquilizers used without moderation and in conjunction with each other can be dangerous and even fatal. For safety take drugs only as prescribed and for the time specified.

What is the cause and meaning of milk leg? This happened to me after I gave birth to my second child.

Mrs. K.M. Wisconsin Dear Mrs. M.: I don't know the origin of the term milk leg and how it came to be used to describe a swelling of the foot, ankle or leg. Occasionally after surgery or the delivery of a child the deep veins of the leg may become inflamed. This is known as phlebitis. The inner lining of the veins may become irritated and form a clot that interferes with the free flow of blood.

Can You Fight Inflation?

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

Munich — West Germany, like the U.S., has its industrialists who, in the manner of Henry Ford II, try to roll with the punch when the weather vanes point to the left. Such a man is Dr. Gerd Tacke, the chief executive of the big Siemens Co., which is the General Electric of West Germany. He was the one industrial titan encountered in several days of interviewing who expressed distaste for efforts to replace Willy Brandt's Social Democratic government before its full parliamentary term expires some three years hence.

An affable, sharp personality who did graduate work at Northwestern University in Chicago, and who is credited with knowing every hotel in Pakistan, Sumatra and other out-of-the-way places which buy Siemens electrical and electronic goods, Dr. Tacke tends to reject all the conventional wisdom of the Right.

You can't fight an inflation, he said, once it is in full swing. The present German inflation, a relatively mild one, started eight months ago and the "sickness" that has resulted "is there." Wages have already gone up. Prices have had to follow. The Bundesbank, the German equivalent of the Federal Reserve, wants to do something about the inflation, but, so Dr. Tacke asks, "is it politically feasible?" Giving his own answer, he says "I don't think it is." Drastic action would produce a liquidity crisis, which would keep industrialists from building the new plants that are necessary to put more goods on the markets and so "fight the inflation of tomorrow."

Dr. Tacke says the West German unions are strong and the government depends on the unions. You can try to reason with the unions, pointing out that their "catch-up" wage demands will result in an 8 per cent inflation. But "reason," he hastens to add, is not a "modern" commodity. The sensible thing to do is to let the unions enjoy their period of euphoria. After the wage rise has been cancelled by the price rise, they will be ready to reason again.

In any event, West Germany can't cry very much: wages have risen by 7.1 per cent per year for ten years, yet the price level has been more or less stable over the decade.

A relaxed character, Dr. Tacke trusts the German workman to be reliable, reasonable and industrious over a twenty-five-year cycle. He does not worry too much about the behavior of the anarchistic young at the Free University of Berlin. Every nation, he says, "has its driftwood," in Santa Barbara, Calif., as well as in West Berlin. By slip of the tongue, which could have been Freudian, Dr. Tacke included "journalists" among those who tend to shift from job to job. The "driftwood" becomes conspicuous in times of over-employment.

Anyone who wants to work can find a job in West Germany, as is proved by the presence of 1.7 million Turks, Spaniards, Italians, Greeks and other foreigners. And there are those 600,000 unfilled jobs. So the unemployed are, by definition, those who either don't want to work or are unemployable for mental or physical reasons.

Dr. Tacke's philosophy more or less coincides with that of the Social Democratic politicians who reject the effort of their own Minister of Economics, Karl Schiller, to force the Bundesbank restrictive policies on the ruling Social Democratic-Free Democratic coalition. The SDP leaders insist they must have a regard for what they call "social symmetry," meaning that the unions have a right to "catch up" with employers, who got the breaks when Dr. Ludwig Erhard was the Chancellor. But, to keep wage increases from having a future inflationary effect, the SDP talks about an "accrual of property" policy.

The idea would be to let the workers earn something extra on a deferred payment basis. The wage increases would be banked in special savings accounts for six years, with the government subsidizing some of the blocked interest payments. The workers would get their money, plus the interest, after the inflationary dangers had passed. As I seem to remember, John Maynard Keynes, in England, sponsored a similar idea in an article on "How to Pay for the War." Whether it is a good or a bad idea would depend on the state of the economy six years hence, when the "lured savings" (the SDP doesn't like to use the word "forced") would flood the market with the deferred purchasing power.

Broadway Stars

By BOB THOMAS

AP Television-Movie Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Summer visitors to Manhattan will find that visiting the Broadway theater can afford a look at their favorites of the screen.

There's Katharine Hepburn in "Coco", but hurry up, she's being replaced by Danielle Darrieux on Aug. 3; Lauren Bacall in "Applause," and Maureen O'Sullivan in "Charley's Aunt."

Next season will bring more veteran stars from the movies. Danny Kaye has been signed to return to Broadway after a 28-year absence; he'll star in "Two by Two," adapted from Clifford Odets' "The Flowering Peach" with music by Richard Rogers. Another entry is Ruby Keeler, who will return after an even longer absence, appearing in a revival of "No, No, Nanette."

Why do movie personalities return to the stage, especially when they face the danger of capricious critics? The reasons are three-fold:

1. The artistic benefits. "I had almost forgotten the thrill of playing to a real, live audience," said James Stewart upon returning from his New York triumph in "Harvey." "It was tough work, playing eight shows a week, but it was worth it. I felt like a kid again."

Henry Fonda, has made regular practice of returning to the theater to recharge his creative batteries. He returned last season for "Our Town."

2. The money. In some cases, returning to Broadway can mean a financial loss, as when Robert Ryan appeared in repertory with "The Front Page." But for players who star in big-budget musicals, the returns can be excellent.

Variety reported recently that Danny Kay's percentage of the "Two by Two" gross could bring him $14,000 a week if the musical becomes a hit. He would also profit from part ownership of the production and from the record album sales.

Katharine Hepburn's percentage of "Coco" has brought her a reported $16,000 to $17,000 per week. Lauren Bacall receives nine per cent of "Applause," which has been operating at capacity for $107,000 weekly.

3. Career hype.

"There's nothing like a Broadway hit to make a career agent," observes a Hollywood agent. "Look at Angela Lansbury. She could have been stuck playing minor roles for the rest of her career in films. But she went to Broadway for 'Mame' and became the toast of the town. Now she's starring for Disney and has her choice of parts."

30 YEARS AGO

The largest shipment of cattle ever made by the Pickaway County Livestock Assn. was sent to Swift and Company in New York. The 204 whiteface herefords filled 12 railroad cars.

Ashville's season pea pack closed July 1 after an almost continuous day and night run since June 13. Among those employed were George Duvall, Ida Plummer and Lilly Seymour who were part of the operation at the beginning of the plant in 1900.

William Thornton, James Shea, Roy Norris Jr., and Ted Moon traveled to Indianapolis, Ind., where they were enrolled in the Citizen's Military Training Camp for the next month.

Fourth of July celebrations in Circleville were strictly informal. Theatres featured continuous shows, flags were displayed everywhere, government and industrial activities were suspended. Candidates for office in the county and district were finding an available crowd at Ashville's festivities.

County schools published their annual calendar for 1940-41. Students began schooling Sept. 3 and ended May 20.

Harland J. Ballard, a 27-year-old Columbus man, was shot by Ashville Marshal Robert Warren and Deputy Cecil Scott, following an argument with his wife at the Fourth of July celebration at the dance.

Viola May Alkire, daughter of Mrs. Fair Alkire, Circleville, left for New York to continue her career by training as a professional dancer. Miss Alkire has earned a reputation in Central Ohio as a dancer since her early youth in Columbus productions as well as local affairs.

Last evidence of the Washington Bakery, which stood on West Main St., was destroyed when the oven, installed over 50 years before, was torn down. The oven, an old fashioned inside type, originally burned wood and coke, but later was adapted to gas. Nearly 15,000 bricks were used in the construction of the ten foot by twelve foot structure.

The Ashville Mop Factory was incorporated under a board of Mrs. Blawden Johnson, Harry Rhoades, Dr. R. S. Hosler, Howell Evans, and J. E. Court-right, manager. The shop was begun by Henry Culp, who made mops in a small shop bordering the alley and directly east of the village council house 50 years earlier.

Kiwanis Club's summer health camp for underprivileged boys of the community was located along the Darby Creek on Wayne Hoover's property. Thirty boys took part in the eight day program of recreation and wholesome food.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Tracy Reed, a June graduate of UCLA, is beautiful, bright, talented and one of the growing number of young black actresses landing continuing roles in television.

Miss Reed had been planning to go on to Columbia University and major in journalism, but she heard last summer that "Love, American Style" was looking for performers. She said, "I'd never acted before but they signed me for the blackouts."

She did the blackout sketches during her senior year and in December read for the feminine lead in "Barefoot in the Park."

She was called back twice to read and was one of five girls selected for a screen test. "It was New Year's Eve when I was told I'd gotten it," she said. "That was a nice present."

"Barefoot in the Park" is one of two half-hour comedy shows based on creations by Neil Simon—the other is "The Odd Couple"—in the ABC fall schedule. Her costar is comedian Scoey Mitchell.

Until recently there wasn't much call for black ingenues, unless they knew how to sing and dance. Chelisea Brown followed that route. "Laugh-In" to a dramatic role in "Mat Lincoln," a new ABC show originally called "Dial Hot Line."

Diann Carroll made the most conspicuous breakthrough for a black actress with the lead in "Julia" and Gail Fisher won an Emmy this year for her role in "Manix."

Other new regulars in the fall include Judy Pace in "The Young Lawyers" and Ena Hartman in "Dan August," both on ABC. Miss Pace was a regular on "Peyton Place" and has a string of movie and television credits. Miss Hartman also has appeared in a number of dramatic programs and movies, including "Airport."

According to Miss Reed, "Barefoot" isn't going to have "social overtones, but it'll be fun. It's mainly a love story. I think showing that we're alive and function the same as anyone else makes it as effective as a heavy drama."

"My mother and brother came down to watch the pilot and my mother said at first she was very conscious of the blackness. But after about 10 minutes it was just about two people."

She sees the character she portrays, Corie Bratter, as a happy, naive person. "She has the ability to wonder at things," she said. She's a little kookie and gets into situations impulsively that she can't handle. Scoey is the square, solid husband."

The Smothers Brothers will be back on the air Wednesday night on an hour summer show on AC, their first series since CBS fired them in April 1969. The premiere show, seen in advance, is a welcome oasis among the reruns. It is funny and the music is in a youthful groove. But Tom and Dick are considerably subdued and much of the humor in this first show is built around the fact that ABC has them on probation.

Heavy Rain Hits Parts Of Midwest

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Thunderstorms scattered rain across the Midwest today, but fair and mild weather dominated most other sections of the nation.

Violent winds and heavy rain accompanied the storms through the upper Great Lakes region late Tuesday.

Wind gusts up to 80 miles an hour pounded the Hibbing, Minn., area. Rain and hail combined to reduce visibility to zero at the height of the storm.

Trees and power lines were toppled by gusty thunderstorms at Pelican Lake, Minn., southeast of International Falls, and at Ashland, Wis., east of Duluth. No injuries were reported.

An inch of rain soaked Hancock and Marquette, Mich., in the predawn hours.

Hundred-degree heat fanning out of the Southwest baked parts of nine states Tuesday. The mercury sizzled to 100 or above in sections of Kansas, Nebraska and Oregon as well as in the normally hot interior areas of the Southwest.

Cooler air followed the thunderstorms into the Midwest and also moderated temperatures in the Pacific Northwest.

Readings before dawn ranged from 51 at Evanston, Wyo., to 96 at Needles, Calif.

It's easy to put together a colorful, meal-in-one casserole, using leftover meats and vegetables. For a quick and tasty sauce, use a can of condensed tomato or mushroom soup. Menu magic will spruce up leftovers, but take care you don't add so much new food that you wind up with leftover leftovers!

Veterinarian Gets Personal Satisfaction Aiding Wildlife

PLEASANT HILL, Calif. (AP) — Dr. Jim Naviaux is a veterinarian who specializes in horses but once fixed up a snake which had a broken back. Didn't charge him a dime, either.

He also has succeeded wounded possums, foxes, raccoons, owls, seabirds and other free-roaming creatures which lacked the wherewithal to meet a doctor's bill.

He figures mankind owes something to the living nonhuman things injured by today's technology.

Dr. Naviaux, who is 38, is the founder and sole staff of the National Wildlife Health Foundation.

The foundation is two years old and so far, the doctor says, running it has cost him about $3,000. He says he hasn't had any help from the other animal lovers of the world, and he has a wife and four sons to support.

"The trouble is," said Dr. Jim in an interview Tuesday, "I'm just not an organizer. This sort of thing takes promotional ability."

The 38-year-old Nebraska-born horse specialist said somebody anonymous once deposited a large king snake on his doorstep. He found it had some broken vertebrae.

He and his pretty wife, Mary, performed an operation on the serpent "and four days later he was well again," the husky good samaritan said.

"It all started about two years ago when a friend found a little fawn on the side of a road," he said. "It had been knocked unconscious by a car and had a broken leg and brain concussion."

For months he and his wife and sons nursed the deer back to health. Last year, they released it to the wild again.

"It became apparent to me that the whole state of California hasn't any facilities to take care of injured wildlife," said Naviaux. "If the creatures are found hurt, they are either released to the wild, or destroyed." He added:

"In the form of letters, I have received the backing of Gov. Ronald Reagan, Sens. George Murphy and Alan Cranston, the American Veterinary Medical Association and the California Department of Fish and Game. But I'm still doing it all myself."

"I get a lot of personal satisfaction out of it—and that's what it boils down to, I guess. Wildlife is just a basic interest of mine."

Naviaux, a graduate zoologist from the University of California, is particularly proud of his role during the Santa Barbara, Calif., oil leak disaster last year.

He took in some 90 seabirds which had been disabled by gooey sludge, and gave over his own home as a hospital aviary to aid in their recovery.

MRS. THOMAS W. BEARD

Miss Ginger Sue Hosler and Mr. Thomas W. Beard were united in marriage 7:30 p.m. May 29, at the Five Points United Methodist Church. The Rev. Lillian Wright officiated the double ring ceremony before the altar adorned with arrangements of daisies, roses and snapdragons of variegated pastel colors. Candelabra were graced with white satin bows, and the pews were marked with trails of ivy and white satin bows. Verna Mowery, pianist, presented a program of nuptial selections.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Sara Jane Hosler, Mt. Sterling and the late Mr. Charles Russell Hosler. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles V. Beard of Atlanta.

The bride was given in marriage by her mother, Mrs. Sara Jane Hosler. The bride was attired in a floor length gown of polyester organza fashioned with a redingote and empire A-line skirt trimmed with cotton Venice lace. The full puffed sleeves and high neckline were trimmed in lace. A chapel length train flowed softly from the back waistline accented by tiny covered buttons. Her shoulder length veil of illusion was held by a headpiece of matching Venice lace and she carried a bouquet of pink roses and daisies, arranged atop a Bible, a gift of the groom.

The bride's cousin, Miss Luanne Loofbourrow, served as maid of honor. Miss Melany Stinson was bridesmaid. The attendants were dressed in formal length pale pink polyester gowns styled with puffed sleeves, high necklines and redingote empire A-line skirts trimmed in lace. They wore matching pink hats and carried baskets of pastel daisies.

Jackie Bigam, niece of the bride and Rita Beard, niece of the bridegroom, served as flower girls. They wore formal length gowns of pink taffeta and carried baskets of daisies. Mike Wardell, a cousin of the bride, was ring bearer.

Mr. Neil Coleman of Williamsport performed the duties of best man. Mr. Larry Beard, Mr. Charles Beard and Mr. Phillip Beard, brothers of the groom, and David Beard, a nephew, seated the guests. Mr. James Beard, brother of the groom, assisted with the gifts.

A reception in the social rooms of the church followed the ceremony. A white linen covered table was centered with a five tiered cake decorated with pink and red roses. Hostesses were Ann Bower, Lynn Bower and Mrs. Sally Terry. Mrs. Cathy Seeley presided at the guest book.

Following a wedding trip to Niagara Falls, the couple resides at 509 Plaza Drive, Circleville.

Preceding the wedding the bride was entertained by Mrs. Fred McCoy, Mrs. Wendell Wardell and Mrs. Larry Bigam at a miscellaneous shower. Mrs. Peter Bowers and daughters, Lynn and Ann, also hosted a miscellaneous shower. Mrs. Jeff Bigam and Mrs. Sally Terry gave a linen shower for her. Mrs. Clark Loofbourrow and daughter, Luanne, entertained with a dinner party and personal shower.

Seventh Race (9 & 10 yr. girls): Bunny Hastings, trophy; Dee Ann Clark, second; Kelly Betts, third; Tina Russell, Lori Hulse, Tammy Christopher, Bonnie Thomas, Sandee Drummond.

Boys Free for All Race: Jeff Keaton, trophy; Chuck Graffis, second; Terry Hanson, third; Robbie Mahorney, Richard Stevens, Larry Bilek.

The trophies presented the winners are very handsomely made of marble and hammered silver. About nine inches tall they have the inscription denoting the winner, the race won, and Post 618. The top of the trophy has the figure of the winged goddess of victory. It is a trophy well worth competing for and each year the competition gets stronger. Bob Francis as the present Legion Commander was there keeping things going smoothly. Don McDill handled the registrar's job and made sure a responsible person signed for each of the entrants; Johnny Reynolds and Jack Hanson were the photographers, par excellence; Starters were Lonzie Rigby and Dallas Valentine with Jack Brayshaw escorting the smaller entrants to the starting line and helping them get their entry number on. Judges were Wilson Thomas, Paul Bivens and George List. "Red" Fry was helping out in all areas, and especially with the little ones. Ray Valone proved himself to be a capable man on the mike with his suave manner. The entire event functioned smoothly but underneath it all was the deep concern for comrade Harry Keller (Junior) who had been felled with a heart attack. He is a patient in Berger Hospital and is progressing, however, visitors are restricted for the time being. A card would do much to add a bit of cheer. Something new added to the races this year was a refreshment stand operated by the Legion Auxiliary and from all appearances it did a booming business.

Among the thousands attending the Lockbourne Air Show were Lawrence and Dorothy Carle and their Donna, Tom, Pat, Rose and Donald. Donna has been home on vacation from her studies at Southern Ohio College and how she has been studying since she has a 4.0 for the semester. Donald is on the mend from a recent tonsillectomy performed at Children's Hospital.

Ah! it is so much better to write about our good friends recovering and recuperating and with pleasure I report that George McGhee is home from Fayette Memorial Hospital and Walter Wright returned by ambulance Saturday from Mt. Carmel Hospital and a chat with his spouse Elsie this a.m. is encouraging indeed. He is, of course, restricted for some time yet but is able to be up a minimum amount of time and may have visitors. Our next concern is that Elsie not overdo since her health has given a few problems and all who know our Elsie are well aware that she is a worker. For years her name and church suppers were synonymous as well as the former Methodist Church booth at the Pumpkin Show. She and her late brother, Russell Wardell gave generously many a hard-working hour to this end and a special medal should be struck in their honor.

Cora Lee Beatty (Mrs Ronald) is a patient in Fayette Memorial Hospital at Washington C.H. undergoing many tests and observations with possible surgery in the offing. A card would be welcome, I'm sure, so all my faithful ones who are so good about sending when the request is made I am counting on you once again.

The busy household of Marcus and Elizabeth Ebenhack has been even busier these past few days. Here from Tulsa, Oklahoma for a visit has been son, Marcus Jr., his wife, daughter Mary Ward and son Robert. On Father's Day the entire family gathered at their favorite eating establishment, for dinner and afterwards went to the home-stead for an afternoon of fun and chatting. Enjoying it all were: Mr. and Mrs. George Miller and daughters, Kathie and Bonnie of Columbus; Mr. and Mrs. L. V. Ebenhack and Ben of Cleveland; the Marcus, Jr.'s of Oklahoma; Mr. and Mrs. Emmitt Ebenhack and their Tom of Circleville; Mr. and Mrs. Merton Garrison and Beth and Becky of Clarksburg; and Charles Ebenhack of Williamsport and Mama and Papa Ebenhack.

Last Wednesday, daughter Marlene Garrison underwent surgery at Chillicothe Hospital and is doing very well. She has been discharged to her Clarksburg home. Marlene's son, Terry will be home on leave the end of this month from his California base and Grandma Ebenhack will probably have the family all together then. That is, of course, if Grandpa Ebenhack has improved since these last three or four days he has not been feeling well at all.

HERE AND THERE

It was farewell last Thursday to the Rev. Thurman Duncan family who moved to their new charge at Zanesville. They had been with the Christian Church here for several years and were an asset to the community. We wish them well in the future.

Smith and Dorothy Hulse spent several days in Middletown recently renewing memories of yore since this area is Mrs. Hulse's old stomping grounds of her youth. It is always pleasant to go back home.

My niece, Michelle Barnes, spent a recent weekend with us and at the same time our Marc spent the weekend with his uncle and aunt, John and Norma Gillfillan, Keith, Norwood and Jo Lynn on their farm near Troy. He made the trip with his Granny Mildred Hardman and cousin David Barnes. Grandma stayed for a longer visit and the boys returned on Sunday with David Barnes Sr. and his mate and friends of theirs from Chillicothe. The two couples had been to Grand Lake, St. Mary's for a boating good time.

There was an air of excitement at the John Graffis abode what with Sue's brother Charles Piper and his wife arriving from Los Angeles, Calif., for the first visit in quite a long time. They all enjoyed a cook-out on Sunday with Sue's dad and step-mother, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Piper and Mr. and Mrs. Herb Bach, Larry, Polly, and Patrick all of Lancaster (Sue's sis and family) Teresa, Chuck and "Littlejohn" Graffis rounded out the family picture.

Ruth (Mrs. Ernie) Minor is back home from a several weeks stay with daughter Judy and her hubby M-Sgt. William R. Irwin at Blytheville A.F. Base, Blytheville, Arkansas. Ruth welcomed a new granddaughter, Emily Eleanor, born 10:22 a.m. June 7, weight 8 lbs 12 oz. The Irwins also have a 2½ year old Amy. Grandson Scotty Picklesimer made the trip with Ruth and he was thrilled no end to get to take a plane trip with some of the guys from the base that covered several states. Another dramatic experience for them was witnessing a tornado hit extremely close by and fill the immediate streets with three to four feet of water. This was Ruth's first venture so far solo and she agrees with me that of all the cities to drive through the very worst was Cincinnati. It was nice to have a call from Myrna (Mrs. Harry, Jr.) Hosler and hear the good news that her nephew, Johnny Armentrout was recuperating beautifully from his hours long open heart surgery on June 11 at Toledo Hospital. Johnny is the son of Jack and Marilyn Higman Armentrout, 2851 N. County Rd. 198, Route 4, Fremont, Ohio 43420. Marilyn has many good friends and co-workers in the Herald reading circle. My neighbor and Johnny's grandma, Mrs. Una Higman spent several weeks with the Armentrout family giving of her own special counsel and inspiration in keeping the household running smoothly and being of extra special comfort to Peggy and Becky, the Armentrout daughters. Myrna, Harry and their young son Brent journeyed up to see Johnny and were much encouraged by his progress. He has been discharged to his home and hopefully will soon be a very active nine year old boy. (He had a birthday just shortly before his surgery).

Another neighbor of mine, Mrs. Charles (Phoebe) Smiley and I visited with dear friend Margaret Sampson at the Frances Edwards Convalescent Home at Washington C.H. recently and found her well and eager to visit with old friends. Mrs. Smiley and I saw Plin Morris at the home visiting his good friend "Doc" House who is a temporary patient. Once I shake this cold or whatever it may be, we hope to run over to Circleville and have an afternoon chat with another dear friend, Mrs. Charles (Alice) Schleich who is at the Circleville Home and Hospital for a while.

By the way, in case you think you have Mary Alice, Ronnie and Don Greenwood's number I would venture to say you haven't unless you got it this past two or three days since it was changed to 986-5481 last Thursday.

HAWAII BOUND

An interesting missive in the mail brings forth the facts that Elba and Goldie Blankenship spent a recent weekend in Galion visiting their daughter Alice and her mate, Bill Speakman and their Becky and Byron. They attended the Vacation Bible School program and both fathers were honored on "their" day. They are quite proud of Becky for winning the perfect attendance award at Kindergarten this year and the only one to win the award, too. Becky is very active taking tap and ballet lessons and had just participated in a Dance Revue. On June 28 the Speakmans were scheduled to jet to Hawaii for a two weeks vacation and on return home settle back into the routine of being a 4-H cooking advisor, secretary for Gal-Lions, treasurer for Wesleyan Guild, and treasurer for Galion City PTA council.

GARAGE SALE

John and Jonda Steinhauser have caught the fever from the rest of us and they, too, have garage sale-itis and so this Friday starting at 1 p.m. they will offer such goodies as furniture, antiques, bric-a-brac, some clothing, and other assorted whatchamacallits, thingamajigs and whatisthats. They are situated two blocks (approximately) from the main drag of town going south and on the west side of the street. See you there! The sale will continue on Saturday, too, beginning at 9 a.m.

MYF CANOE TRIP

Is it possible to be wearily exhilarated? If so, then such would describe the arrival back in town during the wee hours those brave souls who had so-journeyed forth to Loudonville and a forty mile canoe trip. Camp was set-up and the fun began early last Tuesday. Those who enjoyed the overnight outing were: MYF'ers, Rae Fenster-maker, Benny Stevens, Jan Long, Karen Marshall, Cindy Hamman, Tanis Galloway, Debbie Hulse, Doug Betts, Jay Clark, Chuck Graffis, Wyatt Fraas and chaperones, Mrs. Gary Wisecup, Mrs. Ellwyn Hulse and Rev. Ed Linville. From what I hear the group ran the gamut from sunburns good and proper to plenty of spills from the canoes into the water, aching backs and assorted muscles and all the other wierdo things that make for a real bang-up'good time.

Guesting today (Monday) at the Linville home was Miss Alice Anderson of Russellville, Ohio, who from the apt description given me could easily compete for Miss America and win hands down so any eligible young swain around might saunter by the Linville's because I understand she visits frequently. Expected to arrive Tuesday for a few days fun and gossip are Rev. Jack and Martha Price and their David, Mark and John of Flint, Michigan. Joined with the lively Linville lads, Philip, Eddie and Stephen, this should be a real romp.

As the new prexy of Williamsport PTA Rev. Ed announces that Aug. 8 will be a work day at the elementary school and the invite is out for you and you and you to join the "fun". The action will begin at 8 a.m. More details later as the plans firm up.

Another item on the agenda is a Donkey Basketball game to be scheduled soon after fall term of school begins. This should be a blast since it has been a long time since one of those have been held here. As the community reporter I get to be the "scoop man".

Ruth Beck of Circleville launched the Fourth of July with a bash blast at her pad and those from here shooting off to rocket the festivities (oh, how corny can you get — but remember the corn should be knee-high by 4th of July) were Marc and Becki Easterday, Debbie and Kevin Hulse, Chuck Graffis and John Schein. After the party the Graffis kid and curly-haired Fred Archer of Circleville joined Marc for a backyard sleep-out only to get caught in the downpour in the middle of the night. Our backyard was gashed the next day with blankets, sleeping bags etc., etc., spread out all over the place to dry.

Police Score 3 In Little League Game Sit-In

PAINESVILLE, Ohio (AP) — The score of a Little League game here was Dougherty Shell, 23, Wagner Cleaners 4, Police 3.

The police netted their score by arresting three persons staging a sit-in on the pitchers' mound during the game.

Mrs. John Hall, who along with her husband and a neighbor were arrested Monday night, said she didn't have anything against Little League baseball. It's just that she's upset about older boys bouncing baseballs off her house and through her windows in the afternoon. Her house is 250 feet down the left field line of an elementary school baseball diamond.

Mrs. Hall, who appears in court today, says she plans to continue her sit-ins until something is done — like erecting a screen in left field to protect her house.

Guesting today (Monday) at the Linville home was Miss Alice Anderson of Russellville, Ohio, who from the apt description given me could easily compete for Miss America and win hands down so any eligible young swain around might saunter by the Linville's because I understand she visits frequently. Expected to arrive Tuesday for a few days fun and gossip are Rev. Jack and Martha Price and their David, Mark and John of Flint, Michigan. Joined with the lively Linville lads, Philip, Eddie and Stephen, this should be a real romp.

As the new prexy of Williamsport PTA Rev. Ed announces that Aug. 8 will be a work day at the elementary school and the invite is out for you and you and you to join the "fun". The action will begin at 8 a.m. More details later as the plans firm up.

Another item on the agenda is a Donkey Basketball game to be scheduled soon after fall term of school begins. This should be a blast since it has been a long time since one of those have been held here. As the community reporter I get to be the "scoop man".

Ruth Beck of Circleville launched the Fourth of July with a bash blast at her pad and those from here shooting off to rocket the festivities (oh, how corny can you get — but remember the corn should be knee-high by 4th of July) were: Marc and Becki Easterday, Debbie and Kevin Hulse, Chuck Graffis and John Schein. After the party the Graffis kid and curly-haired Fred Archer of Circleville joined Marc for a backyard sleep-out only to get caught in the downpour in the middle of the night. Our backyard was ghastly the next day with blankets, sleeping bags etc., etc., spread out all over the place to dry.

Dear Abby: By Abigail Van Buren

Sweden's Draft Attitude Same As U.S.

DEAR ABBY: Since you took it upon yourself to defend Sweden's policy on sex education in the schools, perhaps you will want to come to her defense again. She could sure use it.

The Swedes have made a lot of enemies in the United States by opening doors to American draft dodgers and deserters. Do you call this friendly to the United States? I don't!

ANNOYED WITH SWEDEN
DEAR ANNOYED: Sweden did not issue any special invitations to American draft-dodgers and deserters, but you should be aware of the following: A convention between Sweden and the United States on October 24, 1961 stated that no extradition may take place for military offenses including desertion. In plain language, this means that the United States has exactly the same attitude toward deserters and draft-dodgers as Sweden has.

DEAR ABBY: Two weeks before our first baby was due, my parents drove 1,800 miles to spend three months with Gilbert and me.

I love my parents, Abby, but they are not the easiest people in the world to get along with. The entire time they were here, they fought bitterly between themselves, quarreled constantly about money, and my mother criticized the way I did everything.

Gilbert is naturally a very quiet man, but my parents insisted he didn't like them, and he was "arrogant" to boot.

The day after I had my baby (which we named after my mother) Gilbert came to the hospital and told me that my parents had packed up and gone home that morning without even saying good-by. Knowing they were on the road, I couldn't get in touch with them, but three days later my mother called and told me that Gilbert never talked to them and they were tired of being treated like two pieces of furniture, so they went home.

Abby, I had to stick up for my husband, which I did. Now I'm getting nasty letters from my mother (signed by my father, too) and I'm so upset I can't sleep nights. Should I apologize to them and insist that Gilbert apologize too? I still think my parents were out of line.

UPSET AND HEARTSICK
DEAR HEARTSICK: If you are telling it "like it was" if there is any apologizing to be done, I think your parents ought to do it. (They sound "sick" to me.) You must protect your own mental health, so write your parents and tell them that until they behave in a civilized manner, you would rather not hear from them. And if they write one more "nasty" letter, you will return all subsequent letters unopened.

DEAR ABBY: May I add a few words of advice to the mother whose daughter is such a poor housekeeper? SAVE YOUR BREATH!

I know whereof I speak. For 15 years I have had a married daughter who answers the description of yours.

I tried. I scolded, bribed, wept, shamed, worked with her, for her, against her. I stayed away. I tried again. I gave her suggestions, a dishwasher, a sweeper, money, my cleaning woman, and the benefit of the doubt. I gave up.

It must be a disease. A kind of "blindness" a complete lack of something in one's character that permits a person to live with clutter and disorder and remain unconcerned. (And she's usually the type who leaves her own home a mess, and goes out to help others.)

If by any chance Abby, you should hear of anyone having "cured" such a person, please let me know how it was done.

ANOTHER MOTHER
P.S. Abby, if you should print my letter, please don't use my name or city. I love my daughter, and she has many fine qualities, but she's a lousy housekeeper.

Apartment Complex Gets Instant Forest

HIGHLAND PARK, Ill. (AP) — A large instant forest is being installed on an 11-acre site as landscaping for a $4.5 million apartment complex.

Max A. Matz, chief landscape architect for the Chicago Park District, heads a firm that created the plan that calls for planting 13,416 trees, bushes and flowers on a portion of the land. Nine acres will be left free of growth to give the area an open-land appearance.

Many of the trees — honey locusts, pine oaks, sugar maples and Maraine ash — average 30 to 35 feet in height.

OHIO CASH GRAIN

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio Dept. of Agri. cash grain prices: No 2 red wheat mostly 2 higher 1.28-1.30, mostly 1.28-1.30; No 2 yellow corn mostly 1 higher 1.24-1.29, mostly 1.24-1.25; No 2 oats unchanged to 1 higher .54-.60, mostly .55-.60; soybeans mostly 1-2 higher 2.67-2.80, mostly 2.69-2.77.

Crane, Dozer Operators Get $10 Hour

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The 14,000 heavy equipment operators who work on commercial construction projects in Ohio will earn $10 an hour under terms of a two-year, statewide contract signed Tuesday.

The pact, believed to be the first of its kind in the nation, takes the place of six previous contracts and provides union members with a $2.25 hourly increase.

The contract is the result of five months of bargaining between the International Union of Operating Engineers and the Associated Contractors of Ohio, Inc.

Members of the union, made up of operators of such heavy equipment as cranes and bulldozers, worked without a contract the past two months.

Frank S. Aquilino, director of Associated Contractors, and

Charles Rutherford of Cleveland, union president, said the contract covers all of Ohio and four Kentucky counties near Cincinnati.

They said the pact will bring stability and centralized control to the industry and will insure against any strike by union members in commercial construction during the next two years.

Gilligan Raps Ohio Mental Hospitals

CAMBRIDGE, Ohio (AP) — Democratic gubernatorial candidate John J. Gilligan said here Tuesday Ohio's mental hospitals are the "state's shame."

He told a gathering of political, civic, business and labor leaders the state must "initiate treatment programs that will help restore many mental patients to a more normal life."

Bonds Forfeited At Russells Point

RUSSELLS POINT, Ohio (AP) — Bonds ranging from $200 to $25 were ordered forfeited in Mayor's Court Tuesday night when 17 defendants facing a variety of charges resulting from weekend rioting here failed to appear.

Twelve other cases were dispensed with. Heaviest fines, $150 each, were levied against Michael Martinez and John A. Swiss, both of Sidney, who pleaded guilty to disorderly conduct.

About 150 persons were arrested during the July 4 disturbances. Another court session is scheduled tonight.

Flouridation Rejected

GREENFIELD, Ohio (AP) — Greenfield voters rejected Tuesday by a vote of 133-94 a proposal to fluoridate the municipal water supply.

The day after I had my baby (which we named after my mother) Gilbert came to the hospital and told me that my parents had packed up and gone home that morning without even saying good-by. Knowing they were on the road, I couldn't get in touch with them, but three days later my mother called and told me that Gilbert never talked to them and they were tired of being treated like two pieces of furniture, so they went home. Abby, I had to stick up for my husband, which I did. Now I'm getting nasty letters from my mother (signed by my father, too) and I'm so upset I can't sleep nights. Should I apologize to them and insist that Gilbert apologize too? I still think my parents were out of line.

UPSET AND HEARTSICK DEAR HEARTSICK: If you are telling it "like it was" if there is any apologizing to be done, I think your parents ought to do it. (They sound "sick" to me.) You must protect your own mental health, so write your parents and tell them that until they behave in a civilized manner, you would rather not hear from them. And if they write one more "nasty" letter, you will return all subsequent letters unopened.

DEAR ABBY: May I add a few words of advice to the mother whose daughter is such a poor housekeeper? SAVE YOUR BREATH!

I know whereof I speak. For 15 years I have had a married daughter who answers the description of yours.

I tried. I scolded, bribed, wept, shamed, worked with her, for her, against her. I stayed away. I tried again. I gave her suggestions, a dishwasher, a sweeper, money, my cleaning woman, and the benefit of the doubt. I gave up.

It must be a disease. A kind of "blindness"—a complete lack of something in one's character that permits a person to live with clutter and disorder and remain unconcerned. (And she's usually the type who leaves her own home a mess, and goes out to help others.)

If by any chance Abby, you should hear of anyone having "cured" such a person, please let me know how it was done.

ANOTHER MOTHER P.S. Abby, if you should print my letter, please don't use my name or city. I love my daughter, and she has many fine qualities, but she's a lousy housekeeper.

Apartment Complex Gets Instant Forest

HIGHLAND PARK, Ill. (AP) — A large instant forest is being installed on an 11-acre site as landscaping for a $4.5 million apartment complex.

Max A. Matz, chief landscape architect for the Chicago Park District, heads a firm that created the plan that calls for planting 13,416 trees, bushes and flowers on a portion of the land. Nine acres will be left free of growth to give the area an open-land appearance.

Many of the trees — honey locusts, pine oaks, sugar maples and Maraine ash — average 30 to 35 feet in height.

Crane, Dozer Operators Get $10 Hour

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The 14,000 heavy equipment operators who work on commercial construction projects in Ohio will earn $10 an hour under terms of a two-year, statewide contract signed Tuesday.

The pact, believed to be the first of its kind in the nation, takes the place of six previous contracts and provides union members with a $2.25 hourly increase.

The contract is the result of five months of bargaining between the International Union of Operating Engineers and the Associated Contractors of Ohio, Inc.

Members of the union, made up of operators of such heavy equipment as cranes and bulldozers, worked without a contract the past two months.

Frank S. Aquilino, director of Associated Contractors, and

Charles Rutherford of Cleveland, union president, said the contract covers all of Ohio and four Kentucky counties near Cincinnati.

They said the pact will bring stability and centralized control to the industry and will insure against any strike by union members in commercial construction during the next two years.

Gilligan Raps Ohio Mental Hospitals

CAMBRIDGE, Ohio (AP) — Democratic gubernatorial candidate John J. Gilligan said here Tuesday Ohio's mental hospitals are the "state's shame."

He told a gathering of political, civic, business and labor leaders the state must "initiate treatment programs that will help restore many mental patients to a more normal life."

Bonds Forfeited At Russells Point

RUSSELLS POINT, Ohio (AP) — Bonds ranging from $200 to $25 were ordered forfeited in Mayor's Court Tuesday night when 17 defendants facing a variety of charges resulting from weekend rioting here failed to appear.

Twelve other cases were dispensed with. Heaviest fines, $150 each, were levied against Michael Martinez and John A. Swiss, both of Sidney, who pleaded guilty to disorderly conduct.

About 150 persons were arrested during the July 4 disturbances. Another court session is scheduled tonight.

Chronic Backaches Plague 30 Million American Citizens

The Circleville Herald
Wed. July 8, 1970 11
Circleville, Ohio

Editor's Note: Thirty million Americans suffer from chronic backache. Causes are varied. So are treatments. But there are ways to avoid the problem, as this article—the third in a series on man's common ailments—reports.

By FRANK CAREY
AP Science Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The middle-aged matron was waiting for a bus at the corner of First Avenue and East 34th Street, a few blocks from the United Nations Building.

Suddenly, she started rhythmically vibrating her pelvis in the motion known by devotees of burlesque shows as "the bumps."

A New York policeman, directing traffic at the busy intersection, dashed to the bus-stop, intent on driving anything lewd or lascivious from his beat. He was about to call the paddy-wagon when the now indignant woman gave this explanation for her pelvic gymnastics:

She had just come from nearby New York University Medical Centers and was merely practicing the "pelvic thrust" exercises prescribed by doctors as rehabilitation for her recent acute attack of backache.

"And she talked her way out of it," smiled Dr. Nancy C. Kester, of NYU's Institute of Rehabilitation Medicine, in recalling the case. "She was a patient of a colleague of mine, Dr. Harvey P. Koppell, and, as I recall it, the woman's conscientiousness about practicing was rewarding. Her back trouble did improve."

The incident is only a vignette in the many-sided quest to improve the lots of the nearly 30 million Americans suffering from chronic backache.

The condition, one of the nation's most serious health problems, is known to doctors as "low-back syndrome."

"Next to upper respiratory complaints, backaches rank No. 2 in bringing people to a general practitioner's office," said Dr. Ira Rumney of Kirksville (Mo.) College of Osteopathy and Surgery, one of the nation's six osteopathic colleges.

Types of treatment vary widely, depending largely upon whether the patient sees an M.D. or a D.O. (doctor of osteopathy).

Some patients may be told only to stay in bed. Others may receive drugs which kill pain or relax muscles. They may undergo surgery, massages, body manipulation or heat treatment. They may be equipped with corsets or braces or pelvis-rolling traction devices using weights strung over the foot of the bed. Just as treatments vary, so do the causes of backaches. Most are triggered, doctors say, by back strains suffered at work, at play or in automobile or other accidents.

But they also can result—especially if you have long-weakened back muscles—from stepping off a curbstone or from an automobile in an awkward manner ... leaning over the washbowl while brushing the teeth or shaving ... cutting your toenails in a cramped position ... turning in bed ... sneezing violently ... picking up a fishing box or other relatively light object; or, as at least one sufferer reported, "lifting a monument."

There's also the case, reported by one osteopath, of a woman "who injured herself after her husband made a playful pass at her from behind while she was washing the floor."

Here are some grimmer, overall statistics on backaches.

—The National Safety Council

estimates that back troubles cause 500,000 workers to be off the job sometime during the year. This costs employers about $1 billion in sick pay and in wages for their replacements.

While uncomplicated muscular strain—or "joint-locking," as some osteopaths put it—is one of the major causes of low-back pain, a Veterans Administration survey indicates that as many as two out of five American adults have a "herniated disc," better known as a slipped disc.

Discs are small roundish structures, consisting of a thick gelatinous material encased in a tough ligament, which act as shock absorbers between each pair of the spinal column's 32 vertebrae.

Often, as a result of a back injury or strain—and sometimes without obvious injury—the surrounding ligament can tear, allowing the jelly-like disc material to protrude and press on nerve roots. This results in pain in the back and often in the legs as well.

Surgery is often recommended, but surefire cures from surgery do not invariably occur, so the value of surgery—except for extreme cases—is a subject of controversy among doctors.

Almost 50 percent of the population has some inborn skeletal defect, such as having other; oddball outgrowths of bone from the sides of the spine; or a so-called "extra" vertebra in the lower-back.

But, said Dr. Rumney of the Kirksville College, as he pointed to a dangling, clacking model of the human skeleton, "many people live with such anomalies very nicely—provided they have good supporting muscles and are not subject to unusual trauma or infection."

NYC's Dr. Kester says the most common causes of back pain are muscle strain and herniated discs, followed by degenerative arthritis.

Dr. Charles Wahl, a psychiatrist at the University of California at Los Angeles' School of Medicine, contends that up to 90 percent of backaches are basically due to varying severe but deep-seated emotional problems which, in turn, cause a tightening of all muscles, including those of the spinal region.

"The vast majority of backaches," he says, "are treated as though they were orthopedic problems and almost never as psychogenic ones. (but) ... most orthopedists don't learn beans about the muscles and they don't learn anything about the mind ..."

Whatever the causes of backaches—physical, emotional, or both—most doctors agree that man's spinal equipment got short-changed when he evolved from a four-legged status to that of an upright biped, and that this made his back vulnerable to miseries.

Said Irvin M. Korr, a research physiologist at the Kirksville College:

"We've taken this magnificent cantilever bridge—the arched spinal apparatus and four supporting limbs of the quadruped —and turned it into a sky-scraper ..."

Korr is one of the few scientists in the country doing basic research on the fundamental mechanisms of backaches as a possible aid toward earlier detection of vulnerable backs.

His quest is part of a broader project, partly supported by the National Institutes of Health, based on Korr's concept that the spinal cord, through its marvelous network of nerve pathways, plays a key role in "organizing" disease processes not only in the back but throughout the body.

In another office at Kirksville, Dr. Rumney offers tips on how to avoid backaches:

"Automobile riding is bad for backs," he says, "not only because it promotes lack of exercise but also because the plain old mechanism of just sitting there promotes a distorted posture ... like a debutante slouch."

"The seats in modern cars are such that you sit too far back and too low."

"I had a travelling salesman come in, complaining about his chronic back-trouble. And I told him: 'Close your window near the driver's seat, so you'll tend to sit up straight. And, put an extension on your accelerator so you'll have to use your left foot instead of the right to step on the gas, which will also improve your riding posture.'"

"Aside from automobile riding, I'm also concerned about women and their high heels—and their girdles which let their abdominal muscles relax."

"And my real pet-peeve is those crazy, crash-diets that many women undertake."

"They became malnourished females with poor tissue quality, resulting in such manifestations as backache and neuritic symptoms of all kinds. Meanwhile, the body tries to function, with the result that everything is abnormally tuned down—like a woodchuck in hibernation."

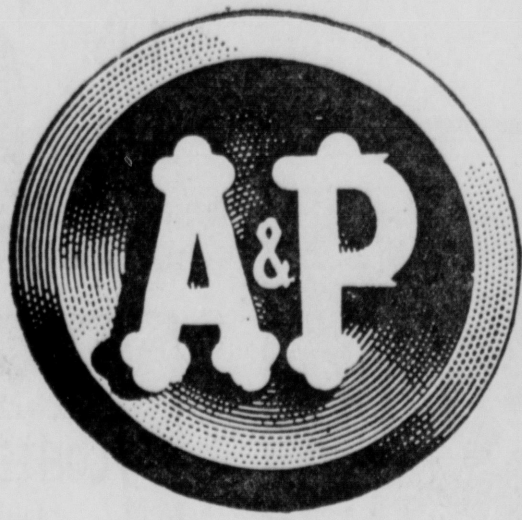

"It takes a good year, on a normal diet, to counteract the adverse effects of this hibernation."

Rogers In Japan For Asian Talks

TOKYO (AP) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers arrived from Saigon Tuesday for talks with Japan's Prime Minister Eisaku Sato on Southeast Asia, including stepped-up assistance to the Cambodian government of Premier Lon Nol.

Rogers also will preside at a meeting Thursday of American ambassadors in East Asia and the Pacific. His top expert on Asian affairs, Assistant Secretary Marshall Green, will report on his findings in Phnom Penh to both the American ambassadors and the Japanese.

Rogers arranged to meet also with Foreign Minister Kiichi Aichi and Finance Minister Takeo Fukuda to discuss the stalled textile negotiations between their two governments and the prospects for easing restrictions on U.S. capital investment in Japan.

Wood Pellet Guns Used On Rioters

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Police in this University of California city with a history of campus-related disorders are now using anti-riot weapons firing wooden pellets "which sting like the dickens but don't penetrate the skin."

"The rioters have started getting cute on us," Lt. Michael Healy told a newsman Monday. "They don't get close to you. They hold back to the distance they can throw rocks from. But this pellet-thrower which we found in Hong Kong gives us access to them."

The blunt wooden pellets have caused no serious injuries thus far Healy said.

Healy said the weapon—described as new to the United States—helped stop a disturbance last Saturday when some 500 demonstrators rampaged through streets after an "Anti-Honor America" rally breaking windows and throwing rocks at police.

The pellets, like slices of a one-inch-diameter broomstick, are stacked five deep in a metal cartridge like a shotgun shell. The pellets "are circular insuring against skin penetration" Healy said.

The shells are loaded into a gun similar to a tear gas launcher with a 1½-inch-diameter barrel and fired with compressed gas, not gunpowder.

Fish Story Real, Woman Claims

BLACKFOOT, Idaho (AP) — Mrs. Pat Ramey, a Blackfoot housewife, has a fish story that's a sure winner.

Mrs. Ramey said she and her husband were fishing from a boat at a reservoir near their southern Idaho community when her husband's rod and reel fell out of the boat.

About an hour later, Ramey was fishing with a second pole and hooked the line of the equipment which had gone overboard.

Mrs. Ramey said she pulled the first pole up—and her husband hauled in a three pound, 16-inch rainbow trout on the other end.

Rogers In Japan For Asian Talks

TOKYO (AP) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers arrived from Saigon Tuesday for talks with Japan's Prime Minister Eisaku Sato on Southeast Asia, including stepped-up assistance to the Cambodian government of Premier Lon Nol.

Rogers also will preside at a meeting Thursday of American ambassadors in East Asia and the Pacific. His top expert on Asian affairs, Assistant Secretary Marshall Green, will report on his findings in Phnom Penh to both the American ambassadors and the Japanese.

Rogers arranged to meet also with Foreign Minister Kiichi Aichi and Finance Minister Takeo Fukuda to discuss the stalled textile negotiations between their two governments and the prospects for easing restrictions on U.S. capital investment in Japan.

BETTY BROWN HOMEMAKER'S HINT

Meat is too valuable, for it's flavor, protein, iron and B vitamins to waste any of it. Part of the cook's skill is to make tasty use of every bit of it. The buyer can usually save money by using the less tender cuts of beef and the less popular cuts of pork, lamb and veal. These cuts cost less per pound but provide the same valuable protein as the more expensive cuts. Variety meats such as liver, heart, and kidney, also provide high return in nutrition for the money spent.

Unusual seasoning can make even the most economical cut of meat into company fare. (Seasonings you may enjoy with meat are Bay Leaf, Chili, Curry, Garlic, Marjoram, Paprika, Sage, Soy Sauce, Sweet Basil, Tabasco Sauce, Thyme and Worcestershire Sauce.) Because these are used in small quantities, they add little to the cost of the prepared food.

Let's Tour Ohio

Hocking Hills State Parks
Offers Natures Best

Hocking Hills State Park west of Logan has a far-reaching reputation for outstanding fall color. But don't overlook the area for a pleasant day in mid-summer amid the best nature has to offer.

You may want to plan your trip between Aug. 23-29, when the Parade of the Hills festival is taking place at Nelsonville, an easy 20-mile drive from the area. It features a street fair, with plenty to eat, amusements, continuous entertainment, and even a queen contest.

Hocking Hills is a rarity in Ohio state parks. Actually six contiguous parks, they are replete with caves, gorges, cliffs and canyons — but no water. The usual water activities can be enjoyed at nearby Lake Logan or Lake Hope State Parks.

It isn't possible to see all of the parks in a day and probably isn't necessary either. But a panoramic view of the entire area can be had atop either the Rock House or Ash Cave fire towers.

Each of the relatively small parks offer something different. Best known is Old Man's Cave with winding ravines and picturesque falls and the lore of the cave itself. A three-mile hike down trail and you're at Cedar Falls, which features a falls at the head of a long gorge.

Ash Cave is a semi-circular recess in huge rock, 700 feet long and 90 feet high, with a stream falling into a pool. It is the second most popular attraction. Cliffs and gorges abound at Cantwell Cliffs, Rock House and Conkles Hollow. All parks are off Ohio 374, except Ash Cave, which is off Ohio 56.

Whichever area one chooses, hikers will have a field day, as will those who save their sights on film. Good picnic facilities are scattered throughout the park. Nature lovers will find the widest variety of trees and plants anywhere in Ohio, as well as over 100 kinds of birds and every species of game native to the midwest. Programs are scheduled at the Old Man's Cave Naturalist Center daily, except Monday.

Once you've enjoyed the Hocking Hills in summer, you're likely to want to go back in October when they are ablaze with nature's color.

The AAA Club suggests this routing to the tour area: from Circleville go southeast on Ohio Route 56 to the tour area.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—It is almost impossible to determine how much of the damage to Ohio's interstate highways is caused by trucks, state officials say.

The General Accounting Office has told Congress in a special report that big trucks cause most highway damage. "Engineers have told us if there were no trucks involved the highways would last forever," the report said.

But the Ohio Highway Department said road destruction is caused by many factors, including weather, and pointed out the rising use of roads.

The GAO, watchdog on federal spending, said virtually all the superhighways built so far in the interstate system may need an added layer of concrete surfacing, estimated to cost $200 million.

However, Ohio doesn't expect to have any massive resurfacing program, according to Jack Cowie, spokesman for the highway department, "because we keep abreast of the problem."

Prof. Kamran Majidzadeh of Ohio State University's Department of Civil Engineering, said much highway cracking is related to the weight of vehicles.

A vehicle that travels on a particular stretch of highway might cause no damage, he said, but if the same vehicle passes the same stretch 10 times, damage could result.

Let's Tour Ohio

Hocking Hills State Parks
Offers Natures Best

Hocking Hills State Park west of Logan has a far-reaching reputation for outstanding fall color. But don't overlook the area for a pleasant day in mid-summer amid the best nature has to offer.

You may want to plan your trip between Aug. 23-29, when the Parade of the Hills festival is taking place at Nelsonville, an easy 20-mile drive from the area. It features a street fair, with plenty to eat, amusements, continuous entertainment, and even a queen contest.

Hocking Hills is a rarity in Ohio state parks. Actually six contiguous parks, they are replete with caves, gorges, cliffs and canyons — but no water. The usual water activities can be enjoyed at nearby Lake Logan or Lake Hope State Parks.

It isn't possible to see all of the parks in a day and probably isn't necessary either. But a panoramic view of the entire area can be had atop either the Rock House or Ash Cave fire towers.

Each of the relatively small parks offer something different. Best known is Old Man's Cave with winding ravines and picturesque falls and the lore of the cave itself. A three-mile hike down trail and you're at Cedar Falls, which features a falls at the head of a long gorge.

Ash Cave is a semi-circular recess in huge rock, 700 feet long and 90 feet high, with a stream falling into a pool. It is the second most popular attraction. Cliffs and gorges abound at Cantwell Cliffs, Rock House and Conkles Hollow. All parks are off Ohio 374, except Ash Cave, which is off Ohio 56.

Whichever area one chooses, hikers will have a field day, as will those who save their sights on film. Good picnic facilities are scattered throughout the park. Nature lovers will find the widest variety of trees and plants anywhere in Ohio, as well as over 100 kinds of birds and every species of game native to the midwest. Programs are scheduled at the Old Man's Cave Naturalist Center daily, except Monday.

Once you've enjoyed the Hocking Hills in summer, you're likely to want to go back in October when they are ablaze with nature's color.

The AAA Club suggests this routing to the tour area: from Circleville go southeast on Ohio Route 56 to the tour area.

See $20 Million In Claims From Canadian Air Crash

TORONTO (AP) — Air Canada officials estimate the cost of settling claims arising from the second worst air crash in Canada's history will come to at least $20 million.

The Air Canada Super DC8 jetliner crashed in a farm field Sunday after losing two of its four engines and a wingtip in a fire as it was trying to land in Toronto. All 99 passengers and nine crew members were killed.

The plane was en route from Montreal to Los Angeles, and more than 20 of the passengers were from Southern California.

By late Monday, 40 persons—relatives of 14 of the victims—had arrived from Montreal, Halifax and Los Angeles to help identify the dead.

"I think they came here out of sheer frustration," said an airline spokesman. The spokesman said Air Canada is not encouraging relatives to fly to Toronto but brings them at company expense if they ask to come.

Police said identification procedures would take all week, after which unidentified remains would be buried in a mass grave.

Ontario province's chief coroner, Dr. H. B. Cotnam, said an inquest jury of five local men would view the crash site today, although the inquest will not start for at least three months.

Richard Bolduc, chief air accident investigator for the Canadian Department of Transport, said there was no tentative theory on the cause of the crash. He said the flight recorder would provide definitive information, but it would take up to five weeks to decode it.

A tape recording of the conversation between the pilot and the control tower probably will not be made public because it is technical in nature and liable to misinterpretation, Bolduc said.

Lindbergh Sees Ecological Crisis Growing Worse

WASHINGTON (AP) — Charles A. Lindbergh says Western civilization has probably entered a "period of breakdown" because of man's mistreatment of his environment.

In a letter to Rep. Emilio Q. Daddario, D-Conn., made public Monday the noted flier said there should be "quick and firm governmental action" to control ecological damage caused by modern technology.

Daddario heads a subcommittee which is studying the need for a national science policy.

"Much as I believe in the utmost practical freedom and independence for man," Lindbergh wrote, "I do not see how his essential environment can be maintained in this technological era through commercial organizations acting independently."

Ohio Agency Keeps Population Data

By DEAN SCHOTT
Associated Press Writer
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The population explosion has been followed by a numbers explosion.

Beginning in July, 1971, the economic research division of the Ohio Department of Development will issue yearly population figures for Ohio's 88 counties.

Gov. James A. Rhodes has designated the research division the official population tabulator for the state.

The division under the direction of Michael Hobson is presently comparing early federal census returns with its 1968, 1969 and 1970 estimates.

When the final federal tabulations are completed in September, Hobson said the division will evaluate its methods for gauging population.

The method that comes closest to federal figures will then be used yearly until the next federal census in 1980, he said.

So far, Hobson said, two methods have worked well in the state because of good data supplies, which other states do not have.

He said the component method employs an equation using births, deaths and the number of persons migrating to and from an area.

The regression plan, he said, uses several variable reflecting population growth or decline. Such variables can be auto registration, school enrollment, voter registration, retail sales and telephones.

Hobson said division estimates were right on target for Franklin County but missed greatly for Youngstown.

Federal figures for Franklin County were 822,326, compared to the division's 1969 estimate of 814,729.

"I haven't seen the federal figures for Youngstown," Hobson said, "but I know we missed there. We showed an increase of 3,000 from 1969 to 1970. In reality, Youngstown lost 20,000."

He termed the miss a "sizeable error" that resulted from recessions in Youngstown's two major industries, steel and transportation.

He said his division will hopefully have complete federal census figures for every city, town, village and crossroads in Ohio by September. The division will then provide comparable population figures for every Ohio county on an annual basis.

Hobson called the yearly approach "new revelation" in information that will produce an explosion of figures to go hand in hand with the population explosion.

Boy Succumbs; Cause Probed

CINCINNATI (AP) — A 6-year-old boy, burned by hot tar after being struck by an auto, has died at General Hospital.

Chris Egnir of suburban Cheviot was hit Tuesday as he darted between parked cars and was knocked to a newly-surfaced street, police said. The driver of the car was not cited.

An autopsy was being conducted to determine the cause of death.

Ball Quits Post As OKI Planner

CINCINNATI (AP) — Charles Ball has submitted his resignation after serving as executive director of the Ohio-Kentucky-Indiana Regional Planning Commission (OKI) for about 20 months.

Ball, who tendered the resignation Tuesday, denied reports that he took the action because of a disagreement with Cincinnati Mayor Eugene Ruehlmann over mass transit here.

The OKI is an agency that distributes federal funds for a total of nine counties in Southwestern Ohio, Northern Kentucky and Southeastern Indiana.

'Rabbit Run' Open Slated 'n Milwaukee

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Milwaukee Open golf tournament, a $110,000 affair that could be dubbed "The Rabbit Run Open," begins Thursday with only a handful of name players on hand to chase the $22,000 first prize.

Bruce Crampton, an Australian who has missed the last couple of tournaments, defending champion Ken Still and burly Bob Lunn are among the top players competing.

Most of the glamor names of the game—almost all the leading money winners, along with Arnold Palmer, Jack Nicklaus, Billy Casper, Gary Player, Tony Jacklin—are in Scotland for the British Open.

That left Milwaukee officials with one of the thinnest fields of the year. There were 57 spots open for the qualifiers, the so-called rabbits, as opposed to a norm of about 20.

Most of the younger players on the tour hastened to fill them, taking advantage of the absence of the game's giants to make some money and possibly gain a one-week exemption for the rich summer swing that begins next week in Philadelphia. "If any of these young kids miss this one, they're out of their minds," one PGA official said.

Only six 1970 tournament winners are entered and one of those—Ron Cerrudo—is very doubtful. Cerrudo, winner of the San Antonio-Texas Open—has missed the last five tournaments with chronic back trouble.

The other winners this year on hand are Kermit Zarley, winner of last week's Canadian Open, Lunn, Mike Hill, Pete Brown and Gibby Gilbert, who may be the favorite.

Gilbert, the surprise winner of The Houston Champions International, finished second last week and pushed his money earnings for the year to over $52,000.

'Rabbit Run' Open Slated 'n Milwaukee

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Milwaukee Open golf tournament, a $110,000 affair that could be dubbed "The Rabbit Run Open," begins Thursday with only a handful of name players on hand to chase the $22,000 first prize.

Bruce Crampton, an Australian who has missed the last couple of tournaments, defending champion Ken Sill and burly Bob Lunn are among the top players competing.

Most of the glamor names of the game—almost all the leading money winners, along with Arnold Palmer, Jack Nicklaus, Billy Casper, Gary Player, Tony Jacklin—are in Scotland for the British Open.

That left Milwaukee officials with one of the thinnest fields of the year. There were 57 spots open for the qualifiers, the so-called rabbits, as opposed to a norm of about 20.

Most of the younger players on the tour hastened to fill them, taking advantage of the absence of the game's giants to make some money and possibly gain a one-week exemption for the rich summer swing that begins next week in Philadelphia.

"If any of these young kids miss this one, they're out of their minds," one PGA official said.

Only six 1970 tournament winners are entered and one of those—Ron Cerrudo—is very doubtful. Cerrudo, winner of the San Antonio-Texas Open—has missed the last five tournaments with chronic back trouble.

The other winners this year on hand are Kermit Zarley, winner of last week's Canadian Open, Lunn, Mike Hill, Pete Brown and Gibby Gilbert, who may be the favorite.

Gilbert, the surprise winner of The Houston Champions International, finished second last week and pushed his money earnings for the year to over $52,000.

Columbus held off a ninth-inning rally by Toledo to pick up an 8-5 victory over the Mud Hens in International League baseball Tuesday.

Jets pitcher Denny Ribant hurled into the ninth inning allowing only four hits and no walks while striking out eight batters.

Rochester took a doubleheader from Richmond, 3-2, 1-0, to move one game closer to league leading Syracuse, now three games in front.

years. We will fight longer—and win."

Traveling from the chemical-poisoned meadows of the Demilitarized Zone to the green wonderland of the Mekong delta, I met no doubters in the South Vietnamese officer corps.

In North Vietnam, the troops I saw of the People's Army looked smartly trained and appeared to be provided with the best of the nation's resources.

In South Vietnam, the 13 months since the Americans' policy of Vietnamization started have been good for the South Vietnam Army (ARVN).

Good fortune has deluged ARVN with military hardware from American reserves, and financed an increase of 100 per cent in regular troops, with American grants.

There's no mistaking the elan of the South Vietnamese officer corps at this time.

It is not among South Vietnamese leaders but among some American officials, in private remarks and casual hints, that a visitor finds doubts about the ultimate outcome.

North Vietnamese leaders do not have the problem of morale among a host of foreign advisers, because they are on their own. The confidence and determination in North Vietnam are not displayed in an echo chamber of foreign doubts.

You ask, "Is pacification succeeding?" and again find "proof" of many answers. U.S. and ARVN briefings say it is. Ninety per cent of South Vietnamese hamlets are now government-secure, according to official statistics.

However an American official concedes that some of the hamlets aren't in their old locations, which were in free-fire zones. They're bunched next to cities and next to the sea.

This is why, flying 2,500 miles in helicopters and light planes, you note that much, perhaps two-thirds, of the country looks deserted. Guerrillas may roam in parts of it by night. Not even a water buffalo can be seen grazing in daylight.

Will the South Vietnamese remain loyal to Saigon's friendship with the United States after an American military withdrawal? An American quotes a Vietnamese proverb in an attempt at an answer:

"If you have enough money, you can buy angels."

From the perspective of five years of American military operations, what do South Vietnamese think of the United States' effort in their behalf? A public opinion poll, conducted with U.S. government funds by Vietnamese employees, shows widespread appreciation. Then you hear another Vietnamese proverb quoted by an American:

"If you bring home elephants, they will trample the graves of your ancestors."

Why are any Americans in South Vietnam uncertain about the future, since ARVN is being strongly armed, the home-front Vietnamese economy is continually bolstered by dollar aid, and U.S. air and sea forces are supreme in Southeast Asia?

A high-ranking American risks being candid:

"You can help too much and too long. There's an erosion that goes on in the spirit of men."

Are we Americans trying to win the war? Are we trying to end the war? Facing a U.S. embassy in Saigon, you ask these questions. He replies:

"We're just trying to build up Vietnam to the level where it can sustain its own independence. That's certainly possible."

You ask, how long? What cost?

The man in Saigon shakes his head.

"Those questions," he says, "can be answered better in Washington."

Improved Soviet Missiles Worry U.S. Military Men

WASHINGTON (AP) — The recent downing of three Israeli jets by Egyptian-based anti-aircraft missiles marks the first effective combat use of improved SAM-2 batteries, U.S. military sources say, and carries ominous implications for American planes flying over North Vietnam.

The trouble could come, these sources said, if the Soviet Union makes the same improvements in North Vietnam's SAM-2s sometimes used against U.S. reconnaissance planes and their escorts.

Changes in the SAM-2, reportedly involve much better electronics mechanism for guiding the missiles to their targets.

U.S. pilots have had great success evading older SAM-2s, mostly by flying tight turns in the air. The SAM-2s accounted for only about 10 per cent of the 926 U.S. warplanes lost over North Vietnam since 1965.

Only nine U.S. aircraft have been lost, none to SAM-2s, since American planes were limited to reconnaissance flights Nov. 1, 1968.

Some U.S. sources indicate the installation of improved SAM-2 batteries near the Suez Canal may be at least as significant militarily as the appearance of the newer SAM-3, another Russian-built anti-aircraft weapon designed to be fired against low-flying planes.

U.S. experts regard the appearance of the SAM-3 east of the Nile as significant because it means the Russians are edging toward the Suez Canal.

Until now, the SAM-3s, believed manned mostly by Soviet crews, have been installed near Alexandria, west of Cairo and near the Aswan Dam.

Sheriff Lists Departmental Action Report

Pickaway County Sheriff Dwight Radcliff released the activity report for his department for the month of June.

They investigated 75 motor vehicle accidents, including one fatal accident and 25 injury mishaps. There was a slight increase from May when they checked 73 accidents, including two fatalities and 21 injury mishaps.

Failure to have the vehicle under control again was the leading cause closely followed by reckless operation.

Saturday and Sunday were the most accident prone days with 11 p.m. to 1 a.m. being the most dangerous hours. Second most dangerous time proved to be 5 p.m. to 9 p.m.

CIRCLEVILLE Township led in the number of mishaps with Washington and Pickaway Townships running a close second.

A total of 65 offenses, up 17 from May, were handled including 28 petty larceny, 20 breaking and entering, 13 grand larceny, 13 malicious destruction, one sex offense and seven miscellaneous offenses.

Harrison Township was hardest hit in this category with Circleville Township second.

The department handled 163 aid and incident reports down 58 from the previous month, with Circleville, Harrison and Pickaway Townships leading the way.

Shearer Heads Westfall Board

Westfall's Board of Education met Monday evening in special session with new superintendent Donald Shearer heading the assembly.

Shearer was named to fill the vacancy in the superintendent's office when Judson Lanman accepted the post of county superintendent. Lanman will begin his duties in August as successor to George McDowell, who is retiring after 50 years of service in the education field.

A resignation was received from Paul Hoskins as head basketball coach. He will continue in his duties as athletic director and teacher in the Westfall system. Replacing him as head coach will be Jeff Bigam, who formerly taught seventh and eighth grade science courses in the school system. Bigam will also have classes in high school mathematics at Westfall.

New teachers employed for the coming term were:

Misses Cheryl and Sherry Lynn Bower, both former students in the Westfall district. Cheryl will teach social studies at the high school and Sherry will instruct a fourth grade class at Darby. Both are recent graduates of Ohio University.

Miss Linda Kay Dorsey, art instructor at high school and seventh and eighth grades at Jackson and Monroe Twp.

Mrs. Linda Dozer, second grade at Williamsport.

Mrs. Norma Feldman, first grade at Williamsport.

David Boleman, history, Latin, English and speech at high school level.

A resignation was accepted from Thurman R. Duncan, custodian at the Williamsport elementary school. Shearer reported Duncan will be moving and be unable to continue employment at the school.

The board recessed until July 13 when they will meet for their annual budget session at the school.

Transit Woes, Garbage Pile Up In Cleveland

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — The streets of Ohio's largest city remained empty of public transportation today as the transit union's wildcat strike entered its eighth day, and garbage collectors' walkout started its second day.

Cleveland Mayor Carl B. Stokes was unable to break the deadlock between the Cleveland Transit System and the transit union at a meeting Tuesday.

CTS said it will delay a decision on possible legal action until after the results of a 10 a.m. union meeting today are made known. Union members are to decide if they will take a strike vote Friday.

Meanwhile, CTS says it is taking transit workers off the payroll Thursday and Friday. Workers' hospitalization is paid through July 31 and their $3,000 life insurance policies paid by CTS were stopped effective July 1.

City officials said they expected all the city's 1,300 garbage collectors on strike today. Most of them called in sick Tuesday, and city officials were preparing to give plastic garbage bags to city residents if the strike goes beyond more than three days.

Stokes said he would require all employees who called in sick to provide a doctor's statement about the illness.

Stokes told both the garbage men and the transit drivers that a recent ruling by the First District Court of Appeals on a Cincinnati public employees' strike could mean serious consequences for other striking public employees.

Cincinnati invoked the state's Ferguson Act, which prohibits striking by public employees, and the court ruled that the employees who struck should lose for a year the pay increase they won and also should be classified as probationary employees for two years.

Members of Division 268, went on a wildcat strike early last Wednesday following the expiration Tuesday midnight of their contract with CTS. The rank-and-file has voted down the proposed two-year contract by more than two-to-one.

Union President Bruce P. Foster said he does not intend to try for a third time to explain the contract that calls for a 65-cent-an-hour pay increase and an additional 10 cents an hour in improved fringe benefits. Drivers who now earn $3.75 an hour, say they want $1 an hour more in pay and claim they have given up some fringe benefits in order to gain others in the proposed contract. They they don't want to lose any benefits. CTS says the contract will cost more than $8 million.

The garbage collectors, members of Municipal Foremen and Laborer's Local 1099, say they are unhappy that the city has not presented a money package and claim the city is bargaining in bad faith.

Stokes claims the garbage strike has made negotiations "impossible." He said, "the trouble is, after the Cincinnati case, our hands may be tied. Once they strike, the Ferguson Act keeps us from giving them any more money, and then the men say they won't go back to work until they get their raises.

And then what do you have?" The garbage collectors now make $3.30 an hour and are asking for an additional $2.76 hourly rate. The city is prepared to hand out 500,000 30-gallon garbage bags a week to keep residents supplied. That would cost $35,000.

Transit Woes, Garbage Pile Up In Cleveland

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — The streets of Ohio's largest city remained empty of public transportation today as the transit union's wildcat strike entered its eighth day, and garbage began to pile up as the garbage collectors' walkout started its second day.

Cleveland Mayor Carl B. Stokes was unable to break the deadlock between the Cleveland Transit System and the transit union at a meeting Tuesday.

CTS said it will delay a decision on possible legal action until after the results of a 10 a.m. union meeting today are made known. Union members are to decide if they will take a strike vote Friday.

Meanwhile, CTS says it is taking transit workers off the payroll Thursday and Friday. Workers' hospitalization is paid through July 31 and their $3,000 life insurance policies paid by CTS were stopped effective July 1.

City officials said they expected all the city's 1,300 garbage collectors on strike today. Most of them called in sick Tuesday, and city officials were preparing to give plastic garbage bags to city residents if the strike goes beyond more than three days.

Stokes said he would require all employees who called in sick to provide a doctor's statement about the illness.

Stokes told both the garbage men and the transit drivers that a recent ruling by the First District Court of Appeals on a Cincinnati public employees' strike could mean serious consequences for other striking public employees.

Cincinnati invoked the state's Ferguson Act, which prohibits striking by public employees, and the court ruled that the employees who struck should lose for a year the pay increase they won and also should be classified as probationary employees for two years.

Members of Division 268, went on a wildcat strike early last Wednesday following the expiration Tuesday midnight of their contract with CTS. The rank-and-file has voted down the proposed two-year contract by more than two-to-one.

Union President Bruce P. Foster said he does not intend to try for a third time to explain the contract that calls for a 65-cent-an-hour pay increase and an additional 10 cents an hour in improved fringe benefits. Drivers who now earn $3.75 an hour, say they want $1 an hour more in pay and claim they have given up some fringe benefits in order to gain others in the proposed contract. They don't want to lose any benefits. CTS says the contract will cost more than $8 million.

The garbage collectors, members of Municipal Foremen and Laborer's Local 1099, say they are unhappy that the city has not presented a money package and claim the city is bargaining in bad faith.

Stokes claims the garbage strike has made negotiations "impossible." He said, "the trouble is, after the Cincinnati case, our hands may be tied. Once they strike, the Ferguson Act keeps us from giving them any more money, and then the men say they won't go back to work until they get their raises."

And then what do you have?" The garbage collectors now make $3.30 an hour and are asking for an additional $2.86 hourly rate.

The city is prepared to hand out 500,000 30-gallon garbage bags a week to keep residents supplied. That would cost $35,000.
